(8) Briefly explain the regulation in clear and nontechnical language. The purpose of this regulation is to establish requirements to protect the health, safety and well-being of children who receive services in residential or day treatment facilities within the Commonwealth. The regulation strengthens health and safety requirements based on current information and research and reduces duplication and inconsistencies within multiple chapters of licensing regulations. These regulations apply to a diverse variety of child residential and part-day program types currently operating within Pennsylvania. The regulations apply equally to profit and non-profit facilities, including service providers who do and do not receive public funds.

Regulatory Analysis Form

(9) State the statutory authority for the regulation and any relevant state or federal court decisions.

Articles IX and X of the Public Welfare Code (62 P.S. §§ 901-922 and 1001-1080).

Nigel Scott v. Karen F. Snider, et. al., No. 91-CV-7080 (June 1, 1995 - Stipulation of Settlement)

(10) Is the regulation mandated by any federal or state law or court order, or federal regulation? If yes, cite the specific law, case or regulation, and any deadlines for action.

Yes. Licensure regulations are mandated by Article IX and X of the Public Welfare Code (62 P.S. §§ 901-922 and 1001-1080).

(11) Explain the compelling public interest that justifies the regulation. What is the problem it addresses?

Children who receive services in residential or day treatment facilities are without the immediate and direct protection of their families. The Department is mandated by law to protect the health, safety and well-being of the children.

(12) State the public health, safety, environmental or general welfare risks associated with non-regulation.

Without government regulation of health, safety and well-being aspects of child residential and day treatment facilities, children are at risk of illness, injury and death.

Regulatory Analysis Form

(13) Describe who will benefit from the regulation. (Quantify the benefits as completely as possible and approximate the number of people who will benefit.)

Approximately 10,000 children and their families will benefit in any given year from the health and safety protections in the regulations.

(14) Describe who will be adversely affected by the regulation. (Quantify the adverse effects as completely as possible and approximate the number of people who will be adversely affected.)

No group or individual is expected to be adversely affected by the regulations.

(15) List the persons, groups or entities that will be required to comply with the regulation. (Approximate the number of people who will be required to comply.)

Approximately 650 child residential and day treatment facilities will be required to comply with these regulations. Types and numbers of facilities include:

- child residential - 449
- community mental retardation - 29
- community mental health - 45
- day treatment - 73
- secure care - 20
- secure detention - 23
- maternity homes - 11

(16) Describe the communications with and input from the public in the development and drafting of the regulation. List the persons and/or groups who were involved, if applicable.

Communication and input in the development of the proposed and final regulations included extensive consultation and active participation by statewide provider, advocacy and consumer organizations, health and safety professionals, providers of service, other state agencies, County Children and Youth Agency administrators and experts in related fields including medical practitioners.

Community participation on the proposed regulations included several preliminary briefing sessions, a three day work group meeting with over 50 people invited, regular exchange of draft documents to obtain written comment, and a one day work group briefing.

Participation and involvement in the development of the final regulations included a 60-day public comment period with comment letters submitted from 145 commentators, a two day work group meeting with over 55 people invited, and individual meetings with many external stakeholder groups.

Lists of all individuals and community organizations involved in the regulatory development process, and those submitting public comments, are included in the regulatory packet.

Regulatory Analysis Form

(17) Provide a specific estimate of the costs and/or savings to the regulated community associated with compliance, including any legal, accounting or consulting procedures which may be required.

The cost of implementing the regulations is anticipated to be cost neutral for the majority of facilities governed by the regulations. A discussion of cost considerations and public comment regarding reportable incidents, staff training, and physical site and administration is contained in the Fiscal Impact portion of the preamble.

(18) Provide a specific estimate of the costs and/or savings to local governments associated with compliance, including any legal, accounting or consulting procedures which may be required.

No additional legal, accounting, or consulting procedures will be required of local government.

(19) Provide a specific estimate of the costs and/or savings to state government associated with the implementation of the regulation, including any legal, accounting, or consulting procedures which may be required.

No additional legal, accounting, or consulting procedures will be required of state government.

The Department will invest significant time and effort to provide training to providers and others related to the new regulations and to develop and maintain a licensing measurement tool to aid in the fair and consistent application of the regulations.

(21) Using the cost-benefit information provided above, explain how the benefits of the regulation outweigh the adverse effects and costs.

Not Applicable.

(22) Describe the nonregulatory alternatives considered and the costs associated with those alternatives. Provide the reasons for their dismissal.

The Public Welfare Code requires the promulgation of regulations.

Regulatory Analysis Form

(23) Describe alternative regulatory schemes considered and the costs associated with those schemes. Provide the reasons for their dismissal.

Many alternatives were considered, researched, and discussed for each specific regulation section. The final regulations represent the general consensus and best thinking of the consumers, advocates, providers, county governments and the Department through an open, involved and participatory regulatory formulation process.

(24) Are there any provisions that are more stringent than federal standards? If yes, identify the specific provisions and the compelling Pennsylvania interest that demands stronger regulation.

No federal standards for licensure of human service facilities exist. Human service facility licensure is a state responsibility.

(25) How does this regulation compare with those of other states? Will the regulation put Pennsylvania at a competitive disadvantage with other states?

These regulations are reasonably comparable to regulations of other states similar to Pennsylvania in size and type of service delivery and as such will not put Pennsylvania at a competitive disadvantage with other states.

(26) Will the regulation affect existing or proposed regulations of the promulgating agency or other state agencies? If yes, explain and provide specific citations.

(1) The following regulations are repealed in whole: 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810 titled Residential Child Care Facility; 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3710 titled Maternity Homes; and 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3760 titled Secure Detention Facility.

(2) The following regulations are repealed in part, insofar as they apply to facilities governed by 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3800: 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3130 titled Administration of County Children and Youth Social Service Programs (as it applies to child residential and day treatment facilities); 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680 titled Administration and Operation of a Children and Youth Social Service Agency (as it applies to child residential and day treatment facilities); 55 Pa. Code Ch. 5310 titled Community Residential Rehabilitation Services for the Mentally Ill (as it applies to facilities serving exclusively children, with the exception of host homes), and 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 titled Community Homes for Individuals with Mental Retardation (as it applies to facilities serving exclusively children).

(3) The following unofficial regulations (never codified in the Pa. Code) are rescinded or superseded: Training School Requirements, formerly referred to as title 6500; and Secure Residential Facilities, formerly referred to as draft 3820 and applicable to the department-operated youth development centers.

Regulatory Analysis Form

(27) Will any public hearings or informational meetings be scheduled? Please provide the dates, times, and locations, if available.

The Department will offer free training to providers of service and other interested persons in each of the Department's four regions within four months after final promulgation of the regulations.

(28) Will the regulation change existing reporting, record keeping, or other paperwork requirements? Describe the changes and attach copies of forms or reports which will be required as a result of implementation, if available.

Yes, some reporting and paperwork requirements will change.

Paperwork requirements have been reduced from the exiting child residential regulations. Paperwork reductions include the elimination of requirements for some policies and procedures, independent audits, hiring practices, personnel records, job descriptions, and staff discipline procedures from the current regulations governing administration and operation of children and youth facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680). While these regulations may support best practice for facility operation, they are not considered to be directly related to the health, safety and well-being protection of children. Providers or funding sources may choose to continue to maintain current practices in these areas.

Where departmental forms are required such as the reportable incident form, the Department will share a draft of the form with external stakeholders for review and comment prior to implementation.

(29) Please list any special provisions which have been developed to meet the particular needs of affected groups or persons including, but not limited to, minorities, elderly, small businesses, and farmers.

Special sections are included in the regulations for secure care (§ 3800.271-274), secure detention (§ 3800.281-283), transitional living (§ 3800.291-293), outdoor and mobile programs (§ 3800.301-303), and day treatment (§ 3800.311-312).

(30) What is the anticipated effective date of the regulation; the date by which compliance with the regulation will be required; and the date by which any required permits, licenses or other approvals must be obtained?

With the exception of § 3800.187-188, the regulations will be effective four months after publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin. Sections 3800.187-188 (relating to medication administration) will be effective 12 months after publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

(31) Provide the schedule for continual review of the regulation.

These regulations will be evaluated as part of the Department's annual licensing inspection process for child residential and day treatment facilities. While no sunset date has been established for these regulations, it is anticipated that the Department will pursue necessary revisions to the regulations, based on public comment and research, within five years from the date of promulgation.

[55 PA Code Chapter 3800]
Child Residential and Day Treatment Facilities

TITLE 55 — PUBLIC WELFARE
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE
[55 PA. CODE CHS. 3130, 3680, 3710, 3800, 3810, 5310, AND 6400]
Child Residential and Day Treatment Facilities

PREAMBLE

Statutory Authority:

The Department of Public Welfare (Department), by this order, adopts the amendment set forth in Annex A under the authority of Articles IX and X of the Public Welfare Code (62 P.S. §§ 901-922 and 1001-1080).

Notice of proposed rulemaking was published at 28 Pa.B 953 (February 14, 1998).

Background:

The purpose of this amendment is to establish requirements to protect the health, safety and well-being of children who receive services in residential or day treatment facilities within the Commonwealth. This regulation strengthens health and safety requirements based on current information and research and reduces duplication and inconsistencies within multiple chapters of licensing regulations.

This regulatory reform initiative is the first of many regulatory reform initiatives of the Cross-System Licensing Project. The purpose of the Licensing Project is to improve existing human service licensing functions within state government by strengthening health and safety protections and reducing duplication and inefficiency within the licensing process. The Departments of Public Welfare, Health and Aging are working jointly with external stakeholders to improve, strengthen and streamline the licensing function for all human service disciplines including child welfare, child care, personal care, mental health, mental retardation, drug and alcohol and aging. While the licensing project includes many initiatives, such as the development of new human service licensing legislation, automation, inferential inspection systems, and training of licensing staff, the regulatory reform initiative is one of the most critical of the project's activities.

This regulatory amendment is the first of ten regulatory amendments planned by the licensing project to be completed over the next four years. In February 1998, the project presented a regulatory consolidation proposal to external stakeholders to consolidate and combine at least 28 chapters of existing licensing regulations into ten chapters. All of these regulations are intended to protect the health, safety and well-being of consumers receiving services by the regulated facilities and agencies.

The development and adoption of a single set of regulations applicable to a variety of program models and settings is being done to reduce duplication and inconsistency among chapters of regulations that are intended to care for children who are exposed to similar health and safety risks. The consolidation of multiple chapters of regulations is an effort to reduce the many, and often conflicting and duplicative sets of regulations that now apply to a single corporation or business. Many human service providers operate different types of human service facilities and therefore must meet several sets of regulations. This is very difficult and requires administrative and staff time and attention to devote to regulatory compliance. Moreover, from a health and safety perspective, there is little value to having multiple sets of regulations where the risks to the consumers is similar. It is anticipated that eliminating some of the burden of complying with multiple sets of disparate regulations will enable facilities to improve their ability to comply with regulations and to spend more time and effort in providing direct services to consumers. The primary intent of regulation consolidation is to improve services and protections to consumers by focusing provider effort on fundamental health and safety regulatory compliance and thus improving the provision of consumer services.

Scope:

These regulations apply to a variety of child residential and part-day program types currently operating within Pennsylvania. The regulations apply equally to profit and non-profit facilities, including service providers who do and do not receive public funds.

The regulations apply to facilities currently governed by 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810 regulations titled "Residential Child Care Facilities", including but not limited to facilities and programs such as group homes generally serving no more than 12 children in a small, home-like setting; residential treatment facilities serving children with mental illness or serious emotional disturbance in a short-term specialized mental health treatment environment; and non-secure residential facilities serving both dependent and delinquent children in various sizes and types of physical structures and diverse program models ranging from the more traditional residential settings to alternative programs and settings such as boot camps, outdoor wilderness programs, mobile programs, and transitional living located in large settings. Approximately 450 residential facilities are currently certified under 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810 regulations.

The regulations will also apply to non-state operated, secure residential facilities currently licensed under 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680 regulations titled "Administration and Operation of a Children and Youth Social Service Agency" and previously governed by requirements for "Training Schools" (formerly uncodified Title 6500) in which the building itself is kept locked and/or there is secure fencing around the perimeter of the building. Fewer than 20 such secure residential facilities are currently certified in the Commonwealth. The regulations also govern 21 secure detention facilities currently certified in accordance with 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3760 regulations titled "Secure Detention Facilities," where children are held temporarily awaiting court disposition, in which the facility is locked or the perimeter is fenced.

Also included within the scope of these regulations are maternity homes, which are currently certified in accordance with 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3710 regulations titled "Maternity Homes" serving an average of 5 expectant or new mothers who are under 18 years of age. Only 11 maternity homes are currently certified in the Commonwealth. The Department has been transitioning certification of these maternity homes from 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3710 titled "Maternity Homes" to 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810 regulations titled "Residential Child Care Facilities".

These regulations also will apply to community residential mental retardation facilities serving exclusively children. There are approximately 30 such facilities currently certified under 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 regulations titled "Community Homes for Individuals with Mental Retardation". These facilities provide specialized care for children with mental retardation.

The regulations will also apply to approximately 45 community mental health residential facilities serving exclusively children currently certified under 55 Pa. Code Ch. 5310 regulations titled "Community Residential Rehabilitation Facilities." The mental health children's facilities are residential care facilities providing community care for children with mental illness.

In addition to the various types of residential programs that the regulations will govern, the regulations also apply to approximately 75 child part-day service facilities currently certified under 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680 regulations titled "Administration and Operation of a Children and Youth Social Service Agency." These are full-day and extended-day alternative education and service programs for children who are transitioning from a more intense residential program back to their families or who need special services for the child to remain at home and avoid more intensive residential placement.

These regulations do not apply to Department-operated facilities that provide secure and non-secure care to children who are adjudicated delinquent. While Department Youth Development Centers and Youth Forestry Camps will not be certified, it is the Department's intent to apply the same regulatory and inspection instruments to these facilities as those applied with private facilities.

Regulatory Formulation Process:

A work plan describing the process and time frames for the regulatory development and promulgation of these regulations was developed in January 1997. The plan provided for ongoing and active consultation and involvement with many external advocacy, consumer and provider organizations. Throughout the two-year regulatory formulation process, the plan called for external stakeholder participation through many and varied opportunities such as formal and informal meetings, discussing issues, and submitting written comment.

In February 1997, March 1997, October 1997, March 1998 and June 1998 individual meetings were held with several statewide provider, advocacy, and consumer organizations. The meetings were convened to give briefings on the scope and content of the new regulations and to obtain input on major issues of particular concern to the different organizations.

To allow for dialogue and to obtain specific feedback from those most directly affected by the regulations, a regulation work group was formed and met for several days during May 1997, July 1997 and August 1998. Work group members included over 55 individuals representing consumers, families, advocates, providers, county government, other professionals in the field of child residential and day treatment services and regional licensing inspectors. Provider participants represented a cross-section of geographic areas, program types, and sizes of facilities. Written drafts of the regulations were also sent to work group members on several occasions for written review and comment.

In accordance with § 201 of the Commonwealth Documents Law (45 P.S. § 1201), the regulations were also published as proposed rulemaking in the Pennsylvania Bulletin on February 14, 1998 with a 60 day public comment period. The Department received 145 letters submitting recommendations for changes to the proposed regulations.

Through the regulatory process, including the various public comment forums and the proposed rulemaking public comment period, many valuable comments and suggestions were received from the many external stakeholders who participated in the process. The Department values the comments submitted and has incorporated many of the suggested changes in the final regulations. The Department appreciates the time and expertise external stakeholders have given to make the final regulatory document an effective regulatory tool for protecting the children served in these facilities.

Format:

These regulations apply to a variety of types of facilities with diverse program approaches to the care and supervision of children, operated in varied types of physical site settings. The final regulations are formatted so that the first 75% of the requirements are universal requirements for all facility types (§§ 3800.1- 3800.245). The last 25% of the regulations include exceptions or additions that apply for special facility types such as facilities serving 9 or more children, secure care, secure detention, outdoor and mobile programs, transitional living, and day treatment §§ 3800.251-3800. 312).

Need for Regulation:

These regulations are needed to protect children who receive care and services in residential or day treatment settings away from their homes and families. The new regulations will protect the health, safety, and well-being of children who are not under the direct care and supervision of responsible parents or caregivers, until such time as the caregivers reassume parenting responsibility.

These regulations cover some types of facilities, such as secure care, day treatment, transitional living, outdoor programs, and mobile programs, for which no facility-based requirements now exist. These regulations are needed to protect the health, safety and well-being of the children. Current regulations for several facility types, including maternity homes and community residential rehabilitation facilities, were promulgated over 17 years ago and do not address current issues and research related to health and safety risks. These regulations will ensure that children receive care in a safe and healthy manner in the various facility types covered by this chapter.

Affected Individuals and Organizations:

Child residential and day treatment facilities as defined in the scope of the regulations are directly affected and must comply with these regulations in order to operate. The children receiving care and services in licensed facilities are directly affected by these regulations since they are the consumers the regulations are aimed at protecting. Families of the children receiving care and services are affected in their interest to assure healthy, safe and quality care for their children. Purchasers of service and placement agencies such as county government agencies and state entities, are affected by the regulations in that they purchase and monitor the quality of the services. Juvenile courts are affected in that they use these facilities as a resource when making placement decisions regarding children who are adjudicated dependent or delinquent.

Paperwork Requirements:

Paperwork requirements have been reduced from the existing child residential regulations. Paperwork reductions include the elimination of requirements for some policies and procedures, independent audits, hiring practices, personnel records, job descriptions, and staff discipline procedures from the current regulations governing administration and operation of children and youth facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680). While the existing regulations may support best practice for facility operation, they are not considered to be directly related to the health, safety and well-being protection of children. Providers or funding sources may choose to continue to maintain current practices in these areas.

Departmental forms that are required, such as the reportable incident form, will be shared in draft form with external stakeholders for review and comment prior to implementation.

Summary of Public Comment and Changes:

Written comments, suggestions and objections regarding the proposed amendments were requested within a 30-day period following publication of proposed rulemaking. In response to requests from several external stakeholders, the Department extended the public comment period by an additional 30 days. A total of 145 letters were received by the Department within the 60-day public comment period, in response to the proposed rulemaking. Following is a summary of the major comments received and the Department's response to those comments. A summary of all major changes from proposed rulemaking is also included.

General—consolidation

Many comments were received both in support of and in opposition to the consolidation of eight chapters of regulations into one. The Independent Regulatory Review Commission (IRRC) recommended that separate regulations for day treatment and secure detention be developed. Those who supported the consolidation did so due to the ease of regulatory burden for providers who now operate under various duplicative and conflicting regulations. Those who opposed the consolidation raised concern about the need to address differences for day treatment and secure detention facilities and concern that the result of the consolidation was lessened requirements from existing regulations.

Response

While the regulations include the requirements for several service types in one chapter, unique program differences are retained. The regulations include special requirements for programs such as secure care, detention, day treatment, outdoor programs, mobile programs, and transitional living. As the Department discussed this issue further with external stakeholders, the commentators in opposition to the consolidation explained that their concerns were largely based on content issues that they believed were not addressed for specific program types, rather than objections based on Pennsylvania Code format and style issues.

While the Department is proceeding with the consolidation effort, concerns expressed by those in opposition were reviewed and considered. In response to concerns about the differences in day treatment and secure detention facilities, significant time was devoted to additional research, visits to facilities, and discussions related to secure detention and day treatment both at individual meetings with commentators during the spring of 1998, and at the regulation work group meeting in August 1998. As a result of public comment and subsequent discussions with commentators, many additional requirements and new exceptions were added for day treatment and secure detention facilities as described in §3800.271-312 of this comment and response section.

In response to concerns about lessening of requirements, the new regulations are not reduced protections for children. Rather, they include many new and strengthened protections from those that exist in current regulations. Improved and strengthened areas of the regulations include: new facility-specific requirements for many service types such as secure care, transitional living, day treatment, and outdoor and mobile programs; reportable incident requirements; medication administration; restrictive procedures; fire safety; physical plant; program planning; child health; staffing; and staff training.

The Department believes that consolidation of regulations, increases safeguards to consumers. Many of the providers of service regulated by these regulations operate various types of day and residential programs for children. For example, of the 21 licensed secure detention facilities, nine operate non-secure care within the same building as secure detention, one is a private corporation that operates many other types of facilities under the scope of these regulations, and two new applications for secure detention to be operated by multi-facility, private companies are being processed. The regulatory consolidation allows providers of various service types to focus less time on unnecessary regulatory compliance with multiple and inconsistent sets of regulations, and more time on quality direct services for children.

In addition, many of the children served in programs covered by these regulations move regularly within these various service types. For example, it is not uncommon for a child to move from a secure detention facility, to a secure facility, and then back home with his family to receive day treatment services. Currently, varied and sometimes conflicting requirements apply that are confusing for the child and the child's family to understand, as well as for the provider to understand and comply. By having one set of consistent requirements applicable for all types of children's facilities, the Department believes that the interests and needs of the child are best met. The consolidation supports equal and consistent protections for children and continuity of care and services for children who receive various services. The need for health, safety, and well-being protections for children served in these facilities is similar regardless of any treatment need, while program and treatment needs of the child should be met on an individualized basis based upon each child's unique needs.

General—program and quality of care

The IRRC and several commentators raised concern about reduction in program standards, placement issues, and the difficulty of adopting universal program standards for children with many different needs.

Response

In response to these concerns, the Department reevaluated the existing regulations to determine where, if any, reductions in program standards occurred. As suggested by commentators, the Department found the reductions largely in the areas of service description, admissions, and placement. Based on public comment the Department has made additions to the final regulations to address these areas (§ 3800.221-3800.223). In response to the concerns about the prevention of inappropriate placement of children in facilities that cannot meet the child's needs, application of these three new sections will assure that a child is placed in an appropriate facility that can meet the child's needs. The Department also added several new sections to the content of the individual program plan at § 3800.226 in response to public comments. With these amendments, the regulations do not reduce program protections to children, but instead include many additional and updated requirements to protect the health, safety and well-being of children in care.

The approach used in the regulations is to provide similar, comprehensive health and safety protections for all children, while maintaining, and even requiring, individual program planning for each child based on his-her own needs. The regulations require individualized health and safety assessments for each child upon admission (§ 3800.141), detailed individual health assessments and screenings for each child (§ 3800.143-146), individual service plans based upon the needs of the child with content of the plan expanded from all chapters of existing regulations (§ 3800.226), and individual restrictive procedure plans for each child that now exist only in regulations for community mental retardation facilities (§ 3800.203). These requirements, coupled with the new additions of admission, service description, placement (§ 3800.221-223) and increased program plan content (§ 3800.226) that were added from proposed rulemaking to final regulations include a comprehensive package of service protections based upon each child's needs.

In addition, these licensing regulations by definition are minimum requirements necessary to operate a child residential or day treatment facility in Pennsylvania, they are just one piece of a total quality of care system. Other protections continue to apply, such as the Mental Health Procedures Act and regulations (55 Pa. Code Ch. 5100) addressing consent issues and program planning, county children and youth program regulations (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3130) governing family service planning, placement, and case management, and the mental retardation system include long-term planning for children. These licensing regulations apply in tandem with many other existing applicable laws, regulations, monitoring systems, and training programs.

General—cost

Some commentators suggested that the regulations will create a significant financial burden on providers of service, particularly related to staff training, reportable incident reporting, and physical site changes.

Response

While there are some additional requirements in the staffing and physical site areas, many providers are already meeting higher standards than currently required. The cost impact of meeting any new regulations is outweighed by the potential benefits to children. Reference the Fiscal Impact section of this preamble for further fiscal analysis and discussion.

§ 3800.1. Purpose

One commentator suggested that the purpose section of the regulations reference the Child and Adolescent Service System Program (CASSP) as a foundation for the regulations.

Response

The Department fully supports the principles of CASSP in the provision of services for children, and these regulations reflect CASSP principles. CASSP principles advance family involvement, child-centered programming, multi-system service planning, cultural competence, least restrictive settings, and community-based services, and these regulations include tangible requirements that support CASSP principles.

§ 3800.3(1). Exemptions—Department-operated facilities

Five commentators suggested that facilities operated by the Department be required to meet these regulations. The IRRC requested clarification as to why the Department's facilities should not meet the same standards as private facilities, and whether these regulations apply to state-owned buildings that are operated by a private corporation.

Response

These regulations do apply to state-owned buildings if the facility is operated by a private company. The exemption applies only for facilities that are directly operated by the Department of Public Welfare.

The Department believes that the same standards should be applied to Department-operated facilities as to private facilities in order to provide equal protection to children. The Department will manage, supervise, and monitor the Department-operated facilities to achieve and maintain compliance with the new regulations. While Department Youth Development Centers and Youth Forestry Camps will not be certified, it is the Department's intent to apply the same regulatory and inspection instruments to these facilities as those applied with private facilities.

In addition to the application of the regulations, the Department's facilities have rigorous and extensive reportable incident procedures. The Department intends to maintain this rigorous reporting system that provides for routine and immediate follow-up whenever there are unusual occurrences. Also, the Department plans to continue its peer review system in which a comprehensive monitoring tool is applied to each Department-operated facility, using juvenile probation officers and other state facility staff to conduct the reviews. These intensive peer reviews address regulatory compliance, as well as compliance with internal Departmental policies and procedures.

With these protections, the Department is confident that children served in facilities that are operated by the Department will be provided protection equal to that of children served in private facilities.

§ 3800.3 (9). Exemptions—drug and alcohol facilities

Seventeen comments were received about drug and alcohol facilities not being covered by this chapter. Eight commentators suggested that children's drug and alcohol facilities should be included in the scope of the regulations, while nine commentators supported the proposed exemption for drug and alcohol facilities.

Response

The Department of Health in accordance with 28 Pa. Code Chs. 709 and 711 currently licenses, and will continue to license, child residential drug and alcohol facilities. Due to the requirements of the Commonwealth Documents Law (45 P.S. § 1202), expansion of the scope of these regulations to include facilities not covered in the proposed rulemaking, may not be considered. Further discussion of this issue and the appropriate licensure for children's drug and alcohol facilities will likely occur in the future in a separate regulatory forum.

Based on public comment, one change was made to further clarify the exemption. Concern was expressed that the regulations as proposed would no longer allow dual licensure by the Departments of Health and Public Welfare if both types of programs were provided in one setting. This is clearly allowed and there is no intent to change current practice. Therefore, the exemption was clarified to exempt programs in which the residents' sole need is the treatment of drug and alcohol dependence. The Department of Health has reviewed and concurred with this amended language.

§ 3800.4. Inspections and certificates of compliance

The IRRC suggested that this section be moved from the applicability section and placed in a separate section.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.5. Definition of child

Two commentators suggested that "through counsel" be deleted.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.5. Definition of child

The Department clarified the definition to be consistent with the Juvenile Act (42 Pa. C.S. § 6302).

§ 3800.5. Definition of individual service plan (ISP)

The IRRC suggested a more complete definition of individual service plan.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.5. Definition of relative

Three commentators suggested adding "legal guardian". One commentator suggested adding "or other extended family member as defined and designated by the child and family".

Response

The terms "child's guardian or custodian" was added in order to accurately reflect the meaning of "relative" as used in § 3800.3(11) (relating to exceptions).

§ 3800.5. Definition of secure care

Based on informal discussions with stakeholders, and a review of existing secure detention facilities, the Department clarified that secure care can be in a portion of a building. A facility can provide both secure care and non-secure care within the same building. The special requirements for secure care apply for the secure portion of the building.

§ 3800.5. Definitions of secure care and secure detention

A comment was received suggesting clarification that secure care and secure detention are limited to delinquent or alleged delinquent children.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800. Definitions—new

The IRRC suggested adding definitions for child care supervisor, child care worker, day treatment center, pressure point techniques, and serious communicable disease. No public comments were received relating to defining these terms.

Response

The term child day treatment center is clearly defined at § 3800.3. All staffing positions, including supervisor and worker positions, are clearly explained by the responsibilities specified at §§ 3800.54 (c) and 3800.55 (f). Further definition of pressure point techniques has been added at § 3800.208 (a), which is the correct location of a definition used only in one or a few specific sections of the chapter. Serious communicable disease is clarified as one which may be spread through causal contact, where these terms are used, including §§ 3800.151-3800.152.

§ 3800.14 Fire safety approval

The Department revised this section to reference applicable state law and regulation, rather than specifically address current fire and panic law and regulation. This change was made so that the regulations would remain current in the event of an amendment in the state fire and panic law or regulations.

§ 3800.15(b) Child abuse.

The Department added a new subsection to reference requirements of the Child Protective Services Law, 23 Pa. C.S. §§ 6301 - 6385, requiring a plan of supervision if there is an allegation of child abuse involving facility staff persons.

§ 3800.16(a) Reportable incidents

Sixty-three comments were received on the definition of reportable incident. The IRRC also submitted comments on this subsection. One commentator suggested changing the proposed term "unusual" to reportable. Six commentators stated the definition was too broad and would require increased paperwork. Eight commentators requested clarification of "action taken by a child to commit suicide", with three of those suggesting the addition of the term "physical" action. Seventeen commentators and the IRRC suggested a more narrow definition and clarification of "injury, trauma or illness". Two commentators requested clarification of "intimate sexual contact". One commentator suggested adding civil rights as examples of child's rights. Two commentators suggested deletion of assault on staff persons. Eleven commentators and the IRRC either raised questions about, or objected to, the 30-minute time frame for child absences. One commentator requested deletion of abuse or misuse of child funds or property. Two commentators and the IRRC requested further limitation on reporting of incidents requiring the services of a fire Department.

Response

The majority of the requested changes were made. The term unusual was changed to reportable as suggested to more accurately reflect the meaning of this subsection.

The Department agrees with the commentators that the proposed definition of reportable incident was too broad and burdensome. Further, the Department agrees that by requiring more reports than are necessary, more important incidents that need to be quickly and carefully investigated, may go unnoticed and unattended to in a paperwork backlog, thus placing children at risk.

The Department added the word "physical" to further clarify suicide acts as suggested.

The Department narrowed the definition of injury, trauma or illness by requiring reporting of all inpatient hospital care, but only outpatient hospital care for serious injuries or traumas. Illnesses, sprains, cuts and other less serious treatment received on an outpatient basis are no longer included as reportable. The regulation work group, which included advocates, providers and other professionals, supported this revised definition.

As requested by commentators, an assault on a staff person was removed from the definition of reportable incident as it relates to non-secure care, but it continues to apply for secure care as specified at § 3800.274(2). Since this relates largely to staff safety, this was removed from the definition. It was retained in secure care however, to indicate potential staff supervision issues that are more likely to occur with the secure care population.

The Department revised and narrowed the circumstances under which child absences must be reported to include those where a child is absent for more than four hours or for more than 30 minutes if the child may be in immediate jeopardy.

In response to specific concerns, the Department did remove abuse or misuse of a child's "property," while retaining "funds."

The Department did not change the terms covering intimate sexual contact, violation of rights, or fire Department services. Regarding the comment about the fire Department services, this regulation has been in effect for over ten years for community mental retardation facilities and the Department has found no unreasonable reporting. Reporting only incidents where a fire has caused actual damage or injury is not sufficient. Even when a child pulls a false alarm, or when a fire Department arrives in time to avert any major property damage, children are placed at risk and such incident should be reported. Frequent false fire alarms could indicate serious staff supervision issues at the facility, as well as create the risk of failure to evacuate in the event of a real fire.

§ 3800.16(c) Reportable incidents

The IRRC and one commentator requested clarification of the proposed subsection regarding the meaning of immediately and who must do the reporting.

Response

The Department agrees that this was confusing and deleted this requirement. This was intended to refer to internal facility reporting procedures leading up to the 12 or 24 hour reporting requirement in (c) and (d). However, in accordance with (b) the facility must write its own internal reporting procedures which may reasonably vary from facility to facility. It is not necessary for the Department to dictate internal reporting procedures, as long as appropriate offices are notified within 12 or 24 hours.

§ 3800.16 (d). Reportable incidents

Several comments were received suggesting an oral report for more serious incidents.

Response

The Department agrees and has made this change to require oral reporting within 12 hours for a fire requiring relocation of the children, an unexpected death of a child, and a missing child if police have been notified for assistance.

§ 3800.16 (e). Reportable incidents

One commentator suggested that the investigation be completed within ten days.

Response

The Department clarified that investigations must be completed within a reasonable period of time.

§ 3800.16(f). Reportable incidents

One commentator suggested a specific time frame for submission of final reports and three questioned the necessity and cost of submitting a final report.

Response

No change was made. Because initial reports of reportable incidents must be filed very quickly, there are often additional internal and external investigations and follow-up corrective action that need to occur. A final report is necessary for the Department and the contracting agency to be informed of the resolution of the incident. It would be unreasonable to specify a time frame for the final report since investigation and follow-up for each incident may vary greatly.

§ 3800.16(h). Reportable incidents

One commentator suggested adding "individual" to modify court order. Two commentators request immediate notification of the child's parent and attorney in the event of a reportable incident.

Response

The word "individual" was added as suggested. The child's parent must be notified immediately as specified in this subsection. The child's attorney was not added as this is not appropriate for routine reporting procedures for all children.

§ 3800.17. Recordable incidents

Eleven comments were received on this section. Some commentators suggested that medication errors, suicidal gestures and child absences be eliminated. Others suggested adding use of restrictive procedures.

Response

The Department eliminated medication errors, since recording of medication errors is required in § 3800.185(a). The Department clarified reporting of child absences, injuries, traumas and illnesses, in accordance with the changes made in § 3800.16(a). The use of restrictive procedures was not added, since separate, very comprehensive reporting of each restrictive procedure use is required in § 3800.213. Suicidal gestures was not eliminated since these are incidents of warnings of problems and must be logged and monitored to avoid serious injury or death.

§ 3800.18. Child funds

One commentator suggested adding a section under child rights to protect a child's funds.

Response

The Department agrees this was an oversight in the proposed regulations and has added a new section covering protection of child funds. This section is based on current regulations found at 55 Pa. Code § 6400.22 relating to community mental retardation facilities.

§ 3800.19. Consent to treatment

Three commentators requested clarification relating to consent to treatment.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.20. Confidentiality

Two commentators and the IRRC requested additional requirements clarifying confidentiality requirements.

Response

The Department agrees this issue was not addressed in the proposed regulations and added a new section on confidentiality. The section requires compliance with applicable laws and regulations as well as specifies requirement for specific circumstances where there is no other statutory or regulatory protection. As suggested by the IRRC, the new requirements are based on 55 Pa. Code § 3680.35 and § 3760.92 relating to confidentiality.

§ 3800.31. Notification of rights and grievances

Several commentators suggested that additional protections for children and families be added including the right to lodge grievances without fear of retaliation, communicating in an easily understood manner, communicating in the primary language or mode of communication of the child and parent, providing copies of rights and grievance procedures to the child and parent, providing notice of consent to treatment protections, and posting of rights and grievance procedures. One commentator suggested that reference to "parent, guardian or custodian" be changed to include the parent as a necessary rather than an optional person to involve through the regulations. It was suggested that the grievance procedure requirements (§ 3800.34 as proposed) be relocated to the section relating to notification of rights and grievance procedures.

Response

All of these changes were made.

§ 3800.32(f). Specific rights—visits

The IRRC and several commentators submitted comments regarding visits to the child. Some suggested that two weeks visits were minimal and that more frequent visits should be required or encouraged. One commentator suggested that visits every two weeks are difficult to arrange for mobile programs. One commentator suggested that visits should be individualized and required as specified in the individual service plan (ISP) rather than as a child right. Three commentators suggested that at time visits are clinically inappropriate. One commentator raised concerns about the child's right to refuse visits. Commentators also suggested visits that are mutually convenient for the child's family and the facility. The IRRC questioned how the two week minimum was established.

Response

The Department carefully considered the many varying views on the issue of child visits and discussed this issue with interested groups. The Department added the requirement that visits must be at a mutually convenient time and location. The Department clarified that visits are a right and not just an opportunity. While more frequent visits are encouraged, the two week minimum is required to assure that family ties are not broken during the time the child is receiving services away from his/her family. In response to IRRC's question, the two week minimum requirement for child visits is based on the current regulations regarding child visits at 55 Pa. Code § 3680.44(2)(1) and is recommended by the Department as the frequency of time necessary for the child and family to be in contact so that family ties and bonds are not broken; more frequent visits with the child's family are encouraged.

§ 3800.32(g). Specific rights—mail

The IRRC and several commentators requested changes to the right regarding mail and the circumstances the child's mail may be opened in the presence of staff persons.

Response

In response to public comment, the Department revised the entire subsection on the child's rights to receive and send mail. The Department clarified the circumstances under which a child's mail may be opened in the presence of staff persons, including when there is suspicion that contraband or other materials or information that may place the child at risk may be enclosed.

§ 3800.32. Specific rights—additional

Commentators suggested the addition of several rights including communication and visits with attorneys and clergy, behavioral health treatment, appropriate clothing, protection from inappropriate discipline, privacy, and the right to practice no religion.

Response

The Department added rights relating to communication with clergy and attorneys, behavioral health, clothing, religion, and discipline. The right to privacy in bathrooms is included in § 3800.103(e).

§ 3800.33. Prohibition against deprivation of rights

A suggestion was received to add that rights may not be used as a reward or sanction.

Response

This change was made. In addition, the Department clarified that family visits may not be used as a reward or sanction.

§ 3800.34. Rights—general

One commentator recommended the addition of a requirement for each facility to have an independent ombudsman.

Response

This change was not made. Although an independent ombudsman for each facility may be a good standard for the oversight of the child's interests, this is not an appropriate minimum requirement for licensure regulations.

§ 3800.54(a)-(b). Child care supervisor—number present

The IRRC and two commentators recommended that a supervisor be on-site at all times for all sizes of facilities. One commentator suggested that a supervisor does not need to be present while children are sleeping. Another commentator suggested that there should be no requirement for presence of a supervisor at all, since technology such as beepers can be used to contact a supervisor if needed.

Response

The Department strengthened the proposed regulation to change the conditions and the minimum number of children present requiring the presence of a supervisor. A supervisor must be on-site at all times 16 or more children are present in the facility. Requiring a supervisor present at all times, regardless of the size of the facility, is not necessary for the protection of the children and would be cost prohibitive for county government and providers of service.

§ 3800.54(d). Child care supervisor—qualifications

Twelve comments were received on the qualifications for child care supervisor. Four commentators did not support any lowering of the qualifications. Seven commentators suggested adding an option of additional years of experience in lieu of college credit hours.

Response

In response to the concern requesting lowering of qualifications by adding an option that would require experience but no college credits, the Department prepared a draft of the final regulations including this option (5 years work experience). However, when the draft was shared with the Regulations Work Group in August 1998, the majority of the work group members did not support the experience option for supervisor positions. The final regulations therefore reflect no change from the proposed rulemaking in regard to supervisor qualifications.

§ 3800.55(a)-(d). Child care worker—ratios

One comment was received suggesting a reduction of the ratio of staff to children to 1 staff to 6 children for facilities with 24 or more children. One commentator suggested that ratios are too low during sleeping hours. One commentator suggested that overnight staffing is not necessary.

Response

These changes were not made since it does not reflect the consensus of the Regulations Work Group and they are not necessary for the protection of children in all types of facilities. Facilities or funding agencies are permitted and encouraged, to exceed the minimum certification requirements whenever appropriate to best meet the needs of the children. The staffing ratios in these regulations are not less stringent, and in some cases are more stringent, than existing licensure regulations.

§ 3800.55(h). Child care worker-age

Eight commentators requested the minimum age for child care workers to be 18 as opposed to 21 years of age, citing various program and hiring pool concerns.

Response

The Department has carefully considered this suggestion and has revised this section to require staff persons to be at least 18 years of age if all of the children in the facility are under 18 years of age. However, if any of the children in the facility are 18 years of age or older, staff must be at least 21 years of age due the staff maturity required to effectively provide care and services in those facilities serving young adults. In response to concern about currently employed staff persons who may be 18, 19 or 20 years of age, the Department has included a grandparent clause in §3800.56(b) to permit these young staff persons to continue to work at facilities.

§ 3800.55(g). Child care worker-qualifications

The IRRC requested consideration of why child care workers are not required to have college training or work experience. Six commentators do not support lowering of qualifications for child care workers.

Response

No change was made. The qualifications of a high school degree or GED certificate were discussed and supported in large part by the Regulations Work Group. Overall, these worker qualifications are not reduced from the current regulations. Title 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810 (Residential Child Care Facilities) require 50% of the workers to have at least two years of college or experience, while the other 50% of the workers have no minimum qualifications at all. Title 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 (Community Residential Homes for Individuals with Mental Retardation) and Ch. 5310 (Community Residential Rehabilitation Services for the Mentally Ill) have no minimum staff qualifications for workers. Hiring and retention of employees in child care worker positions continue to be major challenges for human service providers. To limit the pool of potential employees in an already stressed and thin employment pool is not responsible and could result in reduced protection to children if qualified staff could not be recruited.

§ 3800.56. Exceptions for staff qualifications

Sixteen commentators requested that the new staff qualifications not be applied to currently employed staff persons.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.57(a). Supervision—checks

Two commentators suggested that checking on children every hour is excessive. One commentators suggested checks on children every ten minutes as opposed to every hour.

Response

No change was made. A minimum of hourly checks of children is necessary to protect the health and safety of the children.

§3800.57(d). Supervision—sleeping hours

Eights commentators requested that the exceptions for child supervision during sleeping hours not be limited to those facilities serving no children who are adjudicated delinquent.

Response

This change was made. The Department agrees it is not reasonable to limit this exception as proposed.

§ 3800.58(a). Staff training—orientation

Several questions were raised about who would require training.

Response

In response, the Department further clarified this requirement by adding “regular and significant” before “direct contact with children”.

§ 3800.58(b). Staff training—training hours

The IRRC suggested that both part-time and full-time staff persons should be required to have the same amount of training hours, since both staff persons may be alone with the children and would perform the same duties. Five commentators asked for an extension of time for completion of the 30 hours of training, while one commentator asked for a reduction in the time period. Three commentators recommended the number of training hours be reduced from 30 to 24 hours consistent with the current 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 regulations for community mental retardation facilities.

Response

The Department changed the requirement for annual training in (d) to apply to both full-time and part-time staff. The Department supports the request for an extension of time to complete the training and made a change to require 30 hours of training for both full-time and part-time staff, within 120 days of the person’s date of hire. The Department did not reduce the number of training hours because the majority of the Regulations Work Group members and public commentators supported the 30 hour requirement and the training requirements are considered a major health and safety protection for the children.

§ 3800.58(b). Staff training—training content

Suggestions were received to add the following training content areas: CASSP principles, universal precautions, behavior management, special education regulations, family dynamics and relationships, use of psychotropic drugs, and cultural diversity. The IRRC also asked if the Department will approve specific training courses used by providers.

Response

The Department has added two additional training content areas that relate directly to child health and safety: universal precautions and behavior management. Training on administration of medications is addressed in §§ 3800.187 - 3800.188. The Department will not be approving specific training courses for training areas identified in this subsection, since there are many acceptable training alternatives available and appropriate for a facility’s particular needs and audiences.

§ 3800.58(e). Staff training—first aid

Several commentators and the IRRC requested clarification that a formal certification that is valid for more than one year be acceptable for the length of the certification. The IRRC asked if the Department will approve this training.

Response

The Department has made the clarification regarding formal certification. The Department will not approved this training, but the training must be completed by a certified individual as specified in (f).

§ 3800.81. Physical accommodations and equipment

One commentator requested a change since this would appear to permit facilities to refuse service to children with a disability.

Response

This was not the Department's intent, and the language was rewritten with involvement of the interested commentator.

§ 3800.89(b). Temperature

Two commentators and a member of the House Aging and Youth Committee suggested that the indoor temperature during sleeping hours was too low.

Response

The Department increased the minimum temperature from 58 degrees to 62 degrees during sleeping hours. Sleeping temperatures will be applied in coordination with the requirements in § 3800.102(2) relating to appropriate bedding in order to assure comfort while the child is sleeping.

§ 3800.101. Firearms and weapons

One commentator suggested that even police should not be permitted to carry weapons into the facility. One commentator wrote in support of the proposed regulation.

Response

The Department did not change this regulation. Regulation of firearms and weapons carried and used by law enforcement officials is not within the facility's or the department's responsibility or authority.

§ 3800.102. Child bedrooms

The IRRC asked what was meant by an average ceiling height. One comment was received in support of the square footage requirements. One commentator requested room size of 74 rather than 70 square feet. One commentator asked that bunk beds allow enough space for the child to lie comfortably rather than to sit up in bed. One commentator requested the addition specifying circumstances during which children should be placed in private rooms.

Response

In response to the IRRC's question, the Department refers to average ceiling height to allow for measurement of rooms with eaves, gables, or slanted ceilings. Other changes to the child bedroom requirements were not made as these did not represent the mainstream of public comment on this section.

§ 3800.103. Bathrooms

One commentator suggested that bar soap should be permitted in family settings. One commentator asked about the requirement to provide and label individual toiletry items.

Response

Use of bar soap by multiple users is prohibited since bar soap is a receptacle for transmission of bacteria and germs. The Department clarified subsections (g) and (h) so that individual items required for each child include a towel, washcloth, comb, hairbrush and toothbrush. Other non-personal toiletry items such as toothpaste and shampoo may be shared by children.

§ 3800.106. Swimming

The IRRC and seven commentators objected to the requirement to fence ponds and lakes on the premises due to the cost impact. Several comments also suggested that a life guard should be required only when children are swimming, and not while boating or fishing.

Response

In consideration of cost implications, the Department eliminated these two requirements. The Department cautions providers of service to institute the precautions necessary to protect child safety if water areas are located near areas accessible by the children and during water activities while children are not swimming.

§ 3800.121. Unobstructed egress

Four commentators requested allowance for delayed locking devices on doors.

Response

In accordance with regulations of the Department of Labor and Industry, this change could not be made. Title 34 Pa. Code Chs. 49-60, relating to Fire and Panic Regulations do not permit use of delayed locking devices on doors used for egress, except for C-5 occupancies. The Department of Labor and Industry Industrial Board will entertain requests for variances of this requirement if appropriate fire safety safeguards and protections are in place. For further information on delayed locking devices on doors in non-C-5 occupancies, contact the Bureau of Occupational and Industrial Safety, Department of Labor and Industry.

The Department clarified that even if fire safety approval is not required in accordance with state law, means of egress shall not be locked. Means of egress may not be locked unless the facility has a C-5 Certificate of Occupancy from the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, or an approval in accordance with appropriate local codes in the cities of Scranton, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

§ 3800.129. Fireplaces

Five commentators and the IRRC suggested that use of fireplaces should be permitted with specific precautions in place.

Response

The Department made this change.

§ 3800.132(j). Fire drills

The Department clarified that elevators shall not be used during a fire drill or an actual fire, due to possible power failure and the possibility of elevator shafts acting as chimneys to funnel flames and smoke. Since fire drills are used to practice actual evacuation routes and actions in the event of a real fire, elevators cannot be used in drills.

§ 3800.141. Child health and safety assessment

Three commentators suggested requiring compliance with the requirements of Early and Periodic Screening, Diagnosis and Treatment Program (EPSDT). One commentator suggested adding special diets to the assessment. Three commentators suggested adding hospitalizations, medical diagnoses, medical problems, and mother's pregnancy issues to the assessment.

Response

EPSDT is a Medical Assistance benefit which is available only to children who are eligible for Medical Assistance. While many children receiving services in these facilities are eligible for Medical Assistance, not all children are eligible. Therefore, it would not be appropriate for these regulations to specify a particular program or benefit to which all children are not entitled. Rather, the Department identified the components of the EPSDT screen as required elements of the child health assessment in order to assure equal access to appropriate health assessments to all children, regardless of Medical Assistance eligibility status.

The Department added special dietary needs, hospitalizations, medical diagnoses, medical problems, and mother's pregnancy issues to the assessment.

§ 3800.143. Child health examination-general

Three commentators supported the unclothed physical examination, while three commentators objected to an unclothed exam as being intrusive and intimidating. Several commentators requested clear requirements for written documentation of pre-admission examinations. Several commentators suggested adding a history of mental health development, blood lead level assessments, and sickle cell screening. One commentator requested that health exams be completed annually at a minimum.

Response

The requirement for an unclothed physical examination was not changed. All of the other requested changes were made. In response to discussion with commentators following the comment period, the Department also added a requirement for recommendations for follow-up health services, examinations and treatment in §3800.143(e) (15). The Department changed the term "physical" examination to "health" examination to more accurately reflect the comprehensive nature of the examination process including more than a physical examination. The Department added that health exams must be completed annually, or more frequently as recommended by the American Academy of Pediatrics.

§ 3800.143. Child health examination-behavioral health

Two commentators requested addition of a behavioral health exam as part of each child's exam.

Response

The Department did not make this change since all children receiving services in these facilities do not require a behavioral health examination. In accordance with § 3800.143(e) (15) the health examination must include recommendations for any follow-up examinations, such as behavioral health, and in accordance with § 3800.148 such services must be provided. The Department did add a reference to behavioral health to § 3800.143 (e)(15) and §3800.148 to emphasize the requirement to include behavioral health services where appropriate for the individual child. This will assure that children receive appropriate behavioral health services based upon their own needs, rather than force a blanket requirement for all children that is not always necessary or appropriate.

§ 3800.144. Dental care

Suggestions were received to require dental care at as early an age as necessary, require protective sealants where indicated by the examination, and require an initial exam within 30 days following admission if there is no record of a prior exam within the past 6 months.

Response

These changes were made.

§ 3800.145 - 3800.146. Vision and hearing care

The IRRC requested clarification that American Academy of Pediatrics guidelines recommend vision and hearing screenings at appropriate intervals. Several commentators requested special sections on hearing and vision care.

Response

The Department added new comprehensive sections on both hearing and vision care.

§ 3800.147. Use of tobacco.

Many comments were received on this proposed regulation. Most commentators were in favor of restricting child smoking but recommended that staff persons be permitted to smoke outside the facility and out of sight and secondary smoke access of the children.

Response

The Department agrees with the commentators and revised this regulation to prohibit possession and use of tobacco products by children, to prohibit possession and use of tobacco by staff persons inside the facility, and to allow staff use of tobacco outside the facility if fire safety precautions are taken and use of tobacco is out of sight of the children.

§ 3800.148. Health services

Commentators suggested adding diagnostic services, follow-up examinations and treatment, hearing, vision, blood lead level, and psychiatric services as examples of medically necessary services.

Response

These items were added to the list of examples of health services that may be planned or prescribed for a child. The Department also clarified that acute and chronic conditions must be identified for a child, in addition to providing or arranging appropriate medical treatment.

§ 3800.149. Emergency medical plan

One commentator requested that parents receive copies of emergency plans and notification of implementation of such plans.

Response

This change was made. The Department also clarified that conditions that warrant emergency medical care should be listed in the emergency medical plan.

§ 3800.163. Food groups and alternative diets

One commentator suggested adding a requirement to provide dietary alternatives for children with special health needs, religious beliefs regarding dietary restrictions, or vegetarian preferences.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.164. Withholding or forcing of food prohibited

The IRRC and six commentators requested that withholding of snacks and desserts as punishment be permitted as it can be an effective tool in managing a child's behavior.

Response

While the Department does not endorse use of snacks or desserts as a behavior management tool, the regulations have been changed so this is not a regulatory prohibition.

§ 3800.171(4). Safe transportation

Five commentators suggested that the age of drivers be lowered from 21 to 18 years of age.

Response

This change was not made. Staff persons at all levels, including drivers, must be of a maturity level and age to handle the important responsibilities of child care. Drivers in particular require maturity and driving experience that is generally achieved with age.

§ 3800.181(d). Storage of medication

A question was asked about what needs to be stored separately.

Response

The Department clarified this subsection to state that prescription and over-the-counter medications must be stored separately, as was intended by the proposed rulemaking.

§ 3800.184. Medication log

One commentator suggested that items (3), (4) and (5) be removed from the medication log and placed in the child's record. One commentator suggested blood test monitoring for certain psychotropic medications. The IRRC suggested that the log be updated at the same time a medication is administered.

Response

The Department made the clarification suggested by the IRRC. Side effects, contraindicated medications and special administration instructions are critical items that must be readily available at the time a medication is administered and therefore cannot be kept in the child's record. Blood test monitoring should be ordered by the prescribing physician and would be required to be provided in accordance with § 3800.148 relating to health services.

§ 3800.185. Medications errors

The IRRC requested an explanation of what constitutes a medication error and the procedures to be followed after a medication error. One question was received from a commentator asking what constitutes a medication error.

Response

The Department added the definition of a medication error and added that follow-up action taken after a medication error must be documented. Since the specific procedures to be taken after an error will vary according to the type of medication, type of error, and individual child's needs, it is not practical to specify standard follow-up procedures in the regulations. The Department will monitor, thorough licensing inspections, to assess whether the follow-up action taken was appropriate.

§ 3800.186. Adverse reaction

The IRRC and one commentator requested that parents be notified in the event of an adverse medication reaction. The IRRC also asked where and for how long this information must be kept.

Response

Notification to parents was added. Clarification was added that the information must be kept in the child's record. Section 3800.244 specifies how long record information must be kept.

§ 3800.188. Medications administration training

Ten commentators raised concern and requested more information about the availability and cost of the medications administration course. One commentator requested that the Department should have many courses already approved by the time of regulations implementation. One commentator objected to Departmental approval of the course. One commentator suggested that the two-year retraining requirement is not necessary. The IRRC questioned the qualification of existing in-house provider training programs, requested public notice about the criteria used to determine approval of a training program, and asked whether staff persons would be permitted a phase-in period to meet the training requirement.

Response

The Department is very pleased that, throughout the regulatory process, so many providers and other stakeholders have supported the strengthened protections for children in the area of medication administration. The new and improved regulations regarding medications administration and the medications training programs will be a vast improvement over existing protections. The Department notes that there were no objections to the concept of medications administration training and that the concerns and questions centered around the approval and implementation of the training programs.

In August 1998 the Department developed and distributed a draft bulletin to outline the criteria and procedures for Departmental approval of the training programs. The draft bulletin was sent to a representative work group of external stakeholders, including statewide provider organizations, for review, comment, and discussion at a meeting in September 1998. The final bulletin will be published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin as a Statement of Policy. A list of approved training programs will be published and updated regularly and transmitted to all licensed facilities through a Departmental bulletin.

As specified in the Statement of Policy, the Department will review the following training information and materials in order to approve a training program: the training sequence to be used, the time schedule for the training, method and resources used to evaluate effectiveness of the training, location of training, number of students to be accommodated in each class, outline of training curriculum, teaching methods and strategies, course testing provisions, validation of successful completion, trainer qualifications, and sample training materials.

The Statement of Policy will also identify core training content areas to include: reporting and observing skills, types of medication and side effects, staff responsibilities, handling emergencies, facility policies, communication, managing special instructions, administration rights of children, and regulatory compliance.

Facilities that have existing in-house training programs are encouraged to submit proposals for approval of their programs to the Department. Training programs will be considered in accordance with the criteria specified in the bulletin.

Due to the serious nature and specific procedures and methods acceptable in the medical field relating to medications administration, the Department does not believe it is appropriate to permit medication administration without Departmental approval of each training program. The Department has met with the State Board of Nursing, which also believes that Departmental approval and monitoring of the training programs is essential to assure the children's safety.

The Department believes that a two-year retraining requirement is critical to assure staff are trained in up-to-date practice issues and to keep staff skills and knowledge current.

The Department has considered the IRRC's and commentators concerns about a phase-in period and assurance of a sufficient supply of training programs before implementing this section of the regulations. The Department has decided to adopt an effective date of twelve months after the publication of the regulations as final rules, for sections §§ 3800.187 - 3800.188, to permit adequate time for the development and implementation of medication administration programs. Within twelve months of this publication, all staff persons who administer medications must meet the criteria specified in §§ 3800.187 - 3800.188.

The Department revised the source for the Standards for Diabetes Education Programs from the National Diabetes Advisory Board to the Pennsylvania Department of Health, since the National Diabetes Advisory Board no longer exists. The Department of Health standards are based on the former standards of the National Diabetes Advisory Board. The Department of Health publishes a list of approved diabetes patient education programs for public use. This list is available through the Department of Public Welfare regional offices.

§ 3800.189. Self-administration of medications

Three commentators and the IRRC suggested the elimination of the proposed requirement to limit self-administration to children who are 13 years of age or older.

Response

This change was made.

§3800.201. Restrictive procedure

The IRRC and one commentator requested a change in terms from "behavior intervention" to "restrictive" to be consistent with current 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 regulations relating to community residential mental retardation facilities. Commentators contend that the terms "behavior intervention" include a much broader set of procedures and techniques than is meant by use of the term in this chapter.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.202. Appropriate use of restrictive procedures

One commentator and the IRRC requested the addition of "or as a program substitution" in (a), consistent with current 55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400 regulations relating to community residential mental retardation facilities. Four commentators and the IRRC requested that restrictive procedures also be permitted to prevent serious property damage in (b). The IRRC requested examples of less intrusive techniques.

Response

The addition of "or as a program substitution" was added to (a). However, the Department did not add that restrictive procedures may be used to prevent property damage in (b).

Use of restrictive procedures should always be the method of last resort in any behavior management program, even for children with difficult and aggressive behaviors. Other less intrusive methods and techniques to encourage positive behaviors are available and encouraged, such as close observation and supervision of a child to anticipate and de-escalate frustration and anger in advance of aggressive behavior, positive rewards for good behavior, clear expectations and rules for the child, teaching of all staff persons to apply the facility rules consistently, separation of the child from an activity or person before aggressive behavior escalates, removal of the child from the group accompanied by staff consultation, and active and interesting programs for the children so they are not idle.

If a child's behavior escalates and damage to property is threatened or occurs, often the behavior that causes property damage may be a direct threat to the health and safety of others, such as throwing a large heavy item or breaking glass. In such a case, the behavior that causes property damage poses a threat to the child or others, and a restrictive procedure may be used to prevent injury, as long as other less intrusive methods have been tried but have failed. If, however, the child threatens or causes property damage that does not pose a health and safety threat, such as writing on a wall or tearing pages from a book, other methods of behavior management must be used and restrictive procedures are not permitted. The Department believes that restrictive procedures are generally unnecessary and that they are ineffective in treating or changing maladaptive behavior. Positive behavior management methods have been used as a successful tool for the treatment of even the most difficult and challenging behaviors.

§ 3800.203. Restrictive procedure plan

Three commentators stated that this will significantly increase paperwork. One commentator requested an addition to the planning group to include any person invited by the child or parent.

Response

The Department believes that the benefit of protecting children from abuse or misuse of restrictive procedures justifies any additional time spent in developing the restrictive procedure plan. Paperwork will not be required if restrictive procedures are not used, which is strongly encouraged whenever possible.

Other persons invited by the child and parent were added to the restrictive procedure planning group.

The Department clarified in (d) that the child and the child's parents should have the opportunity to sign the plan.

§ 3800.204. Unanticipated use

The IRRC and several commentators asked for clarification of the meaning of "unanticipated" and "used more than four times". One commentator wrote in full support of the proposed regulation. One commentator suggested that eliminating options for behavior management may limit the ability to manage aggressive youth. Another commentator asked for the ability to apply restrictive procedures for up to five weeks after admission with no plan in place. One commentator suggested that the proposed regulation may be appropriate for children with disabilities, but it is not appropriate for children in children and youth programs.

Response

The Department does not agree that this limits options for managing difficult behaviors. Rather it allows restrictive procedures to be used as part of an array of options, with appropriate assessment and planning for each individual child. Allowing the use to restrictive procedures for up to five weeks without assessment or planning does not assure the child's safety. After restrictive procedures have been necessary for four incidents within a three-month period, assessment and planning for the individual child is very reasonable and necessary.

The Department clarified that this requirement applies after any type of restrictive procedure is used four times for the same child in any three-month period. "Unanticipated" as per Webster's dictionary means "unexpected or unforeseen." There is no special use of this word in these regulations; therefore, a definition in this chapter is not appropriate. If the facility does not have any reason to expect that a child may have behaviors that may require the use of restrictive procedures, but a situation arises where as a last resort restrictive procedures are necessary, that is an unanticipated situation. If, on the other hand, a child with a history of aggressive and assaultive behaviors is admitted, and the facility expects that restrictive procedures may be used for this child, a restrictive procedure plan must be developed prior to use of a restrictive procedure.

§ 3800.205. Staff training

Three commentators suggested that the Department should not approve restrictive procedure training programs. Four commentators asked for clarification about the Department's approval process and criteria. One commentator thought the proposed regulation was a reduction in training requirements. One commentator suggested adding training in cultural competence. One commentator wrote in support of the proposed regulation. The IRRC asked that "for as long as the person is employed" be added after the word "kept" in (c).

Response

In response to public comment, the Department has eliminated the requirement to formally approve each training program. However, facilities must comply with the training components specified in (b). The Department will monitor each facility and assess the training programs as part of the inspection process to determine if the components specified in (b) are included.

In response to the commentator who perceived the training requirements to be a reduction from current regulation, the Department disagrees. This particular area of regulation has been improved and strengthened for all existing sets of regulations, particularly in the children and youth and mental health areas where no specific restrictive procedure training content was previously specified.

Training in cultural competence was not added, since this is not a direct health and safety issue for the appropriate use of restrictive procedures.

A change was not made to require facilities to keep staff training records for as long as a person is employed. This is not necessary. The length of time staff records are kept should be determined by facility policy and not subject to state regulations, with the exception of keeping documentation long enough to verify compliance with the regulations.

§ 3800.208. Pressure points

Five commentators and the IRRC suggested allowing the use of pressure point techniques at the jaw point for bite release.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.209. Chemical restraints

The IRRC questioned why a physician must examine a child before administration of a chemical restraint, how long vital signs must be monitored, and how long and where documentation in (g) must be kept. Two commentators suggested that it is not reasonable to require a physician to examine a child before a chemical restraint is administered. One commentator requested parent consent be required prior to administration of a chemical restraint. One commentator objected to the prohibition of Pro Re Nata (PRN) orders for control of acute, episodic behavior. Two commentators and the IRRC requested clarification on how long of a period vital signs must be monitored.

Response

Paragraph (d) (1) was changed to clarify that vital signs must be monitored for at least one hour and for the frequency and duration specified by the prescribing physician. Subsection (f) was changed to reflect that documentation must be kept in the child's record. The period of time records must be kept is specified in § 3800.244.

No other changes were made. Injecting or administering drugs into a child to control behavior on an emergency basis is perhaps the most serious and intrusive procedure that can be used. Only an on-site, direct physical examination of the child's medical condition, conducted by a licensed physician, prior to each administration of a chemical restraint, can reasonably assure the child's health and safety. This requirement is not intended to support the use of chemical restraints or in any way aid in the ease of administering chemical restraints to children. The Department does not encourage the use of chemical restraints.

Parental consent prior to administration of a chemical restraint is governed in accordance with § 3800.19 relating to consent to treatment.

Facility administration of PRNs to control a child's behavior is a very dangerous use of medication and subjects a child to unnecessary and unreasonable health risks.

§ 3800.210. Mechanical restraints

One commentator asked to add papoose boards to the list of prohibited mechanical restraints. One commentator suggested that the prohibition of mechanical restraints does not permit facilities to appropriately serve aggressive youth.

Response

Papoose boards was added to the list of examples.

If positive behavior management methods, such as those listed in the response to § 3800.202, are used, coupled with limited and reasonable use of manual restraints and exclusion in extreme situations as permitted in §§ 3800.211 and 3800.212, use of mechanical restraints is not necessary to control behavior in non-secure facilities. Use of mechanical restraints in secure care facilities is permitted.

§ 3800.211. Manual restraints

Seven commentators and the IRRC recommended that the requirement in (d) to change positions every 10 consecutive minutes of using a manual restraint be eliminated due to safety issues for staff and children when releasing a child from a manual restraint before a child has gained control. Ten commentators and the IRRC recommended that the requirement in (e) to observe and document the condition of the child every ten minutes a manual restraint is used be eliminated due to staffing costs. One commentator suggested increasing the time for staff observation from ten to fifteen minutes.

Response

The Department did not lessen the requirements for use of manual restraint. Extended use of hands-on control of children beyond ten minutes is potentially very dangerous and, if not properly administered, controlled, and monitored, can result in serious injury or death of a child. There have been several incidents when a person died due to the misuse of a manual restraint.

The Department does not encourage the use of manual restraints. Manual restraints may be used as a last resort only when all other methods of behavior intervention have been tried but have failed. Manual restraints must be immediately released when the child has regained self-control. The Department believes that changing positions and requiring another staff person to observe and document the physical and emotional conditions of the child every ten minutes, will be best protect the child during use of manual restraints.

Throughout the regulatory development process, advocacy organizations have supported these safeguards for use of manual restraints.

§ 3800.212. Exclusion

One commentator requested further prohibitions on the use of exclusion. One commentator suggested that the time frame in (b) be eliminated. One commentator suggested that use of exclusion be part of the child's individual service plan. Two commentators and the IRRC requested that (c), which restricts the frequent use of exclusion within the same day, be eliminated.

Response

No changes were made to this section. Comments indicate a continuum of opinion on the regulation of exclusion, from those who believe there should be more stringent requirements to those who believe that the requirements are overly restrictive. The Department believes the regulations strike the proper balance of interests and that, as proposed, will protect children from the potentially harmful effects of overuse of exclusion. The use of exclusion for a child for more than 4 times in a day is confusing to the child, and, frequent use of exclusion decreases the effectiveness of this method of behavior intervention.

As suggested, the regulations do require the development of an extensive plan for use of exclusion (§ 3800.203) and that plan must be part of the individual service plan (§ 3800.226(5)).

§ 3800.221 - 3800.223. Description of services, admission, and placement process

The IRRC and several commentators raised concern about reduction in program standards, particularly relating to placement and admission procedures and safeguards.

Response

In response to these concerns, the Department reevaluated the existing regulations to determine where, if any, reductions in program standards occurred. As suggested by commentators, the Department found the reductions largely in the areas of service description, admissions, and placement. Based on public comment, the Department has made additions to the final regulations to address these areas (§§ 3800.221 - 3800.223). In response to the concerns about the prevention of inappropriate placement of children in facilities that cannot meet a child's needs, these three new sections will assure that a child is placed in an appropriate facility that can meet the child's needs.

§ 3800.224. Development of ISP

Two commentators and the IRRC requested increased facilitated involvement of the child's parent. One commentator suggested that a short term ISP be developed within 72 hours of arrival at the facility. One commentator and the IRRC requested addition of an emergency care plan for children who are in short-term emergency placements of 30 or fewer days.

Response

The Department strengthened the requirements for facilities to involve the child's parent by adding requirements to include any person invited by the child or the child's parent in (b), mutually convenient meeting times and places in (c), documentation of efforts to involve the parent in (d), and an explanation that the child and the child's parents shall have the opportunity to sign the plan in (e).

The Department did not add a requirement for a short-term plan within 72 hours of the child's arrival or for children in placement for 30 or fewer days. It would be very difficult for facilities to prepare an effective service plan within a few days of a child's arrival due to staffing issues, time to notify and involve appropriate persons, and the lack of time to observe the child's needs and behaviors in the new setting. Preparing a plan within a few days or a week of a child's arrival could result in staff time being misdirected to unnecessary paperwork without increased protections for the child.

Emergency care and placement can be received at any setting covered by these or other regulations such as child foster care. A contracting agency that purchases emergency placement services may require short-term planning services as part of its funding requirements.

§ 3800.225. Review and revision of the ISP

Three commentators suggested that quarterly reporting should be required. The IRRC and one commentator suggested that these regulations should be consistent with the Mental Health Procedures Act (50 P.S. §§7101-7503) relating to progress reviews every 30 days. The IRRC also questioned if parents would be involved in the review and revision of the plan.

Response

As suggested by the IRRC, the Department added a cross-reference to § 3800.224 to specify that parents must be involved in review and revision of the plan.

The time frame for formal review and revision of the plan remains at six months. This time frame is based upon federal statute (Pub. L. 105-89, 42 U.S.C. §§ 671(a)(16), 675(5)(B)) and the Pennsylvania Juvenile Act (42 Pa. C.S. § 6351(e)), both of which require six month program reviews. The Department did consider, and an original draft of the regulations shared with external stakeholders included, quarterly reviews of the ISP; however, many objections were received from external groups citing statutory requirements and current 55 Pa Code § 3810.35 requiring six month reviews.

The Mental Health Procedures Act and 55 Pa. Code Ch. 5100 regulations (titled Mental Health Procedures) are not referenced in this section because only some of the children served in these facilities fall under the jurisdiction of the act. The Mental Health Procedures Act applies independently and separately from these regulations. These regulations are the minimum requirements for any facility serving children with a wide variety of needs. These regulations apply in tandem with the Mental Health Procedures Act, if applicable for an individual child. If there are different or conflicting requirements, the more stringent requirement must be met.

While the formal review and revision period for the ISP remains at a minimum of six months, the Department did consider the IRRC's suggestion to require monthly progress reports and has added this requirement in § 3800.226(3) relating to the content of the ISP. Monthly progress reports will serve to assess a child's progress and provide regular updates for parents.

§3800.226. Content of ISP

One commentator suggested reduction in the ISP content in that it exceeds minimum health and safety requirements. The IRRC and several commentators suggested adding measurable and individualized goals, how progress will be measured, who will measure progress, and what criteria will be used to measure progress. Other suggested additions include adding components on educational needs, a schedule of family visits, competency development, strengthened family involvement, special education services, medication plan, community linkages, and more detailed discharge planning and parental involvement.

Response

The Department added measurable and individualized goals, monthly documentation of the child's progress (see comments received on § 3800.225), the child's need for safety, competency development and permanency, an educational component, methods to measure progress, who is to measure progress, and objective criteria to measure progress. The Department also added a new section at § 3800.230 to address parental involvement in discharge planning and notification.

§ 3800.229. Education

Two commentators and the IRRRC suggested adding several specific requirements of other laws and regulations regarding educational requirements. Three commentators suggested that facilities be prohibited from requiring a child to attend on-grounds schools as a condition of participation at the residential facility. One commentator suggested adding the child's education records to the child's record.

Response

The Department revised this section to broaden the citations of appropriate education regulations at 22 Pa. Code Chs. 11, 14, and 15. However, it is the Department of Education through statutory authority and regulations that will apply and enforce these rights to education protections, and not the Department of Public Welfare through these residential licensure regulations. If in the course of Department of Public Welfare licensure inspections, suspected violation of education laws and regulations is observed, the Department will notify the Department of Education.

The Department added education and service records to the child's record in § 3800.243.

§ 3800.271. Criteria for secure care

Two commentators suggested additional clarification that secure care is permitted only for children who are alleged delinquent or adjudicated delinquent.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.272. Admission to secure care

One commentator suggested the addition of admission requirements for secure care facilities.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.274 (14) - (15). Additional requirements for secure care—dangerous items

In response to concerns raised at the August 1998 Regulations Work Group meeting, the Department added two new paragraphs relating to furnishings and other items that could pose a danger to children whose health and safety assessment indicates known or suspected suicide or self-injury attempts or known incidents of aggressive or violent behavior. These additional requirements were supported by consensus of the work group members.

§ 3800.274 (16) - (17). Additional requirements for secure care—use of handcuffs, leg restraints and seclusion

Several commentators and the IRRC suggested that the use of handcuffs, leg restraints and seclusion be prohibited completely or further restricted by decreasing times permitted for their use. IRRC suggested that the current requirements at 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3760 provide more guidance to facilities and more protection to children and that they be retained.

Response

The Department does not agree that the current regulations at Ch. 3760 provide more guidance and more protection than the proposed regulations. Many of the sections in Ch. 3760 are vague and subject to broad interpretation and the proposed regulations include better protections for children. Several examples follow: a) while § 3760.42(1)(i) allows use of seclusion for up to 16 hours in a 48-hour period, the proposed regulations limit use of seclusion to no more than 12 hours in a 48-hour period, b) while § 3760.42(2) states that an administrator may order handcuffs for a period not to exceed one hour there is no requirement about extended use of handcuffs or any limitation of how long they may be used in a 48-hour period as addressed fully in the proposed regulations, 3) there is no requirement in Ch. 3760 for a restrictive procedure plan for each child, as in the proposed regulations, 4) there is no regulation of exclusion or manual restraints in Ch. 3760, as in the proposed regulations, 5) there are no staff training requirements for the use of restrictive procedures in Ch. 3760 as in the proposed regulations, and 6) there is no requirement for a medical examination regarding the physical health of the child prior to extended use of seclusion or restraint as in the proposed regulations.

The Department concurs with the commentators that use of seclusion, leg restraints and handcuffs should be used as a last resort and that the restraint or seclusion must be removed as soon as the child has regained control of his/her behavior. It should be emphasized that the requirements at § 3800.202 apply to the use of seclusion, handcuffs, and leg restraints including: may be used only to prevent a child from injuring himself or others, may not be used in a punitive manner, may be used only after other less restrictive methods must have been tried and failed, and must be discontinued as soon as the child regains control of his behavior.

The Department did reduce the time frames for use of handcuffs and leg restraints from six hours to two hours. The time for a supervisory check of handcuffs and leg restraints was reduced from two hours to one hour. A new requirement was added to limit use of handcuffs and leg restraints to no more than 4 hours in any 48-hour period.

The use of seclusion was reduced from six hours to four hours and from 12 hours to eight hours in any 48-hour period. Requirements for the seclusion room were added.

Lastly, new requirements were added to restrict use of mechanical restraints and seclusion simultaneously, and to limit use of seclusion and mechanical restraints to no more than six hours in a 48-hour period.

The final regulations regarding use of seclusion, leg restraints and handcuffs in secure facilities represent significantly increased protections to children from the current regulations and are supported by those commentators who were concerned about protecting children from overuse of seclusion, handcuffs and leg restraints.

§ 3800.283. Additional requirements for secure detention—bedrooms

Three commentators requested that the special requirement for detention for no more than one child per bedroom be eliminated, since many detention centers currently permit two children per room as required at § 3800.274(11).

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.283(1). Additional requirements for secure detention—staff qualifications

One commentator suggested that the minimum qualifications for a child care worker in a secure detention facility be maintained as an associate's degree as in the current regulations at 55 Pa Code Ch. 3760 titled "Secure Detention Facilities."

Response

This change was made.

§3800.283. Additional requirements for secure detention—other

One commentator suggested that several additional requirements that exist in 55 Pa. Code Ch. 3760 be added, including compliance with specific portions of the Juvenile Act (42 Pa. C.S. §§ 6301-6365), minimum age of children in detention, continual contact with children, prohibition of children and adult offenders in the same areas, reporting to the Department of children detained for more than 35 days, placement reviews, limits on new buildings, specifications for living and study areas, and requirements for recreation programs.

Response

The Department very seriously considered these additions. The Department carefully reviewed the current Ch. 3760 requirements and the proposed regulations for gaps and important requirements that were excluded. In response to public comment, the Department added the following requirements: compliance with all the sections of Juvenile Act relating to detention, the minimum age of children in detention, continual visual or audio contact with children, prohibition of children and adult offenders in same space, quarterly reporting to the Department for children detained for more than 35 days, and placement reviews. The Department did not add the requirement for limitations on new buildings because this is not appropriate for licensure regulations. The Department did not add a requirement for living and study areas or recreation programs, since these are issues for all facilities and not just secure detention, no other comments were received on these issues, and these are not health and safety protections appropriate for minimum licensure regulations.

§ 3800.291. Criteria for transitional living

Three commentators suggested eliminating or clarifying the Departmental approval of training courses.

Response

Upon reconsideration, the Department eliminated the requirement for Department approval.

§ 3800.293. Additional requirements for transitional living

The IRRC requested clarification of this section as it relates to on-site staff supervision and the number of children on the premises.

Response

The Department agrees this was confusing as proposed and made this clarification.

§ 3800.303 (a) (3). Additional requirements for outdoor and mobile programs—handwashing

The Department of Agriculture and the IRRC suggested that children have the opportunity to wash their hands before each meal and brush their teeth at least daily.

Response

This change was made.

§3800.303 (a) (6). Additional requirements for outdoor and mobile programs—litter

One commentator requested deletion of a litter from the list of emergency items.

Response

This change was not made. A portable litter is necessary for transportation of a child in an emergency situation if the children are not in an area that can be reached by a rescue vehicle.

§ 3800.303 (a) (8) - (9). Additional requirements for outdoor and mobile programs—map and schedule

One commentator suggested that the requirement for staff to have a map and the seven-day schedule apply only when the children are away from the stationary site.

Response

This change was made.

§ 3800.303 (b) (4). Additional requirements for outdoor and mobile programs—training

The IRRC suggested that the Department clarify appropriate recognized training sources. One commentator suggested that there is no such thing as an appropriate recognized training source and that some outdoor programs have their own in-house training programs for staff and children.

Response

The Department eliminated "by an appropriate, recognized source" and will instead assess each training program as to the appropriateness and effectiveness of the training program, as part of the annual licensing inspection.

§ 3800.311. Exceptions for day treatment

Several commentators suggested additions to the list of exceptions for day treatment facilities including: child funds, certain reportable incidents, fire drills, vision care, hearing care, and meals.

Response

These exemptions were added.

§3800.312 (3). Additional requirements for day treatment—staffing

A commentator suggested that in day treatment, children are often not directly supervised at all times.

Response

The Department eliminated the requirement for direct supervision at all times. The Department also clarified and reduced the number of children present in the facility requiring a supervisor, from 36 to 32, to increase protection for children and in keeping with multiples of the staff to child ratios at 1:8.

§ 3800.312 (4). Additional requirements for day treatment—indoor square footage

A commentator suggested reducing the amount of indoor square footage from 50 to 15 square feet in accordance with school requirements.

Response

This change was made.

Six commentators requested the acceptance of a school health examination.

Response

In an effort to avoid duplication, this change was made. The school examination may be accepted by the day treatment facility, if the examination meets public school requirements and has been done within the periodicity schedule required by the public school.

§ 3800.312 (8). Additional requirements for day treatment—meals

The IRRC and two commentators suggested adding "break" after meal to assure that day treatment programs do not need to provide meals to the children but can instead require children to bring meals from home.

Response

This change was made.

§ 5310.3. Applicability

The IRRC requested clarification about the applicability of host homes.

Response

This change was made.

Fiscal Impact:

Some commentators suggested that the proposed regulations would have a significant impact on the cost of providing care, particularly related to staff training, incident reporting and a few physical site requirements. In drafting the final regulations, careful consideration was given to the effect the regulations will have on the cost of providing care. Following is discussion regarding the regulatory areas that will have the greatest impact on the cost of care.

1. Staff Training. The new regulations place a strong emphasis on initial and ongoing staff training as an important component to protect the health and safety of children. The regulations require that new staff persons receive at least 30 hours of specific health and safety related training prior to working alone with children and within 120 days after the date of hire. The regulations also require that veteran staff persons receive at least 40 hours of training each year in general child care topics including first aid, Heimlich techniques, cardiopulmonary resuscitation, and fire safety.

The current regulations for child residential facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3810), which apply to the majority of facilities governed by this new chapter, require an unspecified number of hours of training for new staff persons in most of the same areas required by the new regulations and 40 hours of training in the first year of employment. Also currently required is 40 hours of training each year for veteran staff. The current regulations for community mental retardation homes (55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400) require orientation for new staff persons and at least 24 hours of training each year for veteran staff persons. The current regulations for secure detention and community residential mental health facilities do not address staff training hours or content areas.

While community mental retardation homes may need to increase the number of training hours from 24 to 40 hours per year, and community mental health and secure detention facilities may need to enhance their training programs, the Department does not anticipate the staff training requirements to be cost prohibitive for providers. The Department will permit a variety of staff training models and options including effective on-the-job training programs and staff meetings that include training components. In addition, the Department offers many free and low-cost training programs for staff persons in children's residential and day treatment facilities. For children and youth programs, the cost of providing training is an allowable cost for federal, state and county children and youth reimbursement.

The staff training requirements have been widely supported by the Regulations Work Group, providers of service, parents and consumers, and child advocates as being essential to protecting the health and safety of children. Any minimal increase in costs associated with the new staff training requirements is outweighed by the benefit of protecting children.

2. Reportable incidents. The new requirements for reporting reportable incidents will increase paperwork for certain facility types. The regulations require reporting of specific types of incidents to the Department and the contracting agency. This reporting system is imperative to protect children from harm by studying patterns of incidents and taking action where appropriate to improve health and safety protections to children.

In response to public comment regarding the anticipated cost of reporting incidents in the proposed regulations, the Department amended § 3800.16(a) to reduce the types of incidents that are reportable.

Current regulations for child residential and day treatment facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680) and community mental retardation homes (55 Pa. Code Ch. 6400) require reporting systems for many incidents. While the requirements for the types of incidents in children and youth facilities have been expanded, facilities do already have reporting systems and procedures established.

The amount of increased paperwork to comply with the regulations will be negligible.

3. Physical Site. Public comment regarding the cost of the new physical site requirements were mainly concerned with the proposal to fence ponds and lakes and to limit bedrooms to one child per room in secure detention. The Department amended § 3800.106 and § 3800.283 to eliminate these requirements.

4. Administration. Many administrative and fiscal requirements governing the operation and administration of child residential and day treatment facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 3680) and community mental health residential facilities (55 Pa. Code Ch. 5310) have been eliminated. Requirements governing areas such as independent audits, governing body, administrative records, hiring practices, personnel management, job descriptions, and staff discipline procedures are no longer required.

The reduction in paperwork requirements in the area of administration will result in a cost savings, with no diminished protection of children.

Effective Date:

With the exception of §§ 3800.187-188, this chapter is effective (4 months after publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin). Sections 3800.187 - 3800.188 (relating to medication administration) are effective (12 months after publication in the Pennsylvania Bulletin).

Implementation:

As requested by providers of service, the Department will develop a licensing measurement instrument that regional licensing inspectors will use to apply and measure compliance with the new regulations. The draft measurement instrument will be shared with statewide external stakeholder organizations for review and comment prior to implementation of the regulations and the instrument.

The Department will provide a training and orientation course on the new regulations, in each of the Department's regions, for providers and other interested persons, prior to implementation of the regulations.

Sunset Date:

The effectiveness of these regulations will be evaluated as part of the Department's annual licensing inspection process for child residential and day treatment facilities. While no sunset date has been established for these regulations, it is anticipated that the Department will pursue necessary revisions to the regulations, based on public comment and research, within 5 years from the date of this publication.

Regulatory Review:

Under § 5(a) of the Regulatory Review Act, the Act of June 30, 1989 (P.L.73, No. 19) (71 P.S. §§745.1-745.15), the agency submitted a copy of this final regulation on APR 8 1999 to the Independent Regulatory Review Commission and to the Chairmen of the House Committee on Aging and Youth and the Senate Committee on Public Health and Welfare. The Department provided the Commission and the Committees with copies of all comments received during the public comment period. The agency has also provided the Commission and the Committees with a copy of a detailed Regulatory Analysis Form prepared by the agency in compliance with Executive Order 1996-1, "Regulatory Review and Promulgation". A copy of this form is available to members of the public upon request.

In preparing the final-form regulations, the agency has considered all comments received from the public, the Commission, and the Committees.

These final-form regulations were deemed approved by the House Aging and Youth Committee and the Senate Public Health and Welfare Committee on _____. The Independent Regulatory Review Commission approved the regulations on _____, in accordance with § 5 (c) of the Regulatory Review Act.

Finding:

The Department of Public Welfare finds that:

(1) Public notice of proposed rulemaking was given under sections 201 and 202 of the Commonwealth Documents Law (45 P.S. §§ 1201 - 1202) and the regulations thereunder, 1 Pa. Code §§ 7.1 and 7.2.

(2) A public comment period was provided as required by law and all comments were considered.

(3) These final-form regulations are necessary and appropriate for the administration and enforcement of Articles IX and X of the Public Welfare Code.

ARTICLE I. LICENSING/APPROVAL

CHAPTER 3680. ADMINISTRATION AND OPERATION OF A CHILDREN AND YOUTH SOCIAL SERVICE AGENCY

GENERAL PROVISIONS

§ 3680.1. Applicability.

(a) With [three] four exceptions, this chapter applies to the administration and operation of an agency, whether public or private, for profit or not-for-profit, which provides the social services specified in subsection (c).
