FYI -

I guess we can file this under "proposed comments" for #2559?

Subject: Blog discourse on Rules and Regs

There are a number of nasty twists in the Governor's proposal to change the PA Rules and Regulations. One of the most sinister is that many people who have small kennels say that they will simply give up their licenses. There are now 782 K-1 kennels (those with 26-50 dogs). Do not, for a minute, think that those people will give up breeding dogs. But this proposal leaves the gate wide open for an operation such as Hunte Corp. has in the Midwest. There are even a couple in PA that would fit this business model. Such a broker can afford to buy puppies from the smaller breeders, who can stay beneath the radar. He can afford to build the factory farm type kennel required in the proposed regulations. And he will keep all those small breeders solvent, while reselling puppies to every pet shop on the East coast. When it happens it will be the fault of those who SUPPORT this loony proposal. Don't say I didn't warn you. More later.
