I am writing to urge that the proposed new regulations for dogs NOT be passed. The current laws are excellent. Instead of wasting time and money with new regs that are not enforceable and are possibly even unconstitutional or illegal, the Governor should allocate money and manpower to enforce the current laws. The proposed changes are vague and not based on tenets of animal husbandry. They will do very little to stop the dreaded "pupymills" and a great deal to harm the reputable hobby breeders in this state.

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Brinkley
