Dear Ms. Bender:

This letter is in support of the new Dog Law Regulations, but in light of the article in today's Lancaster Sunday News, I feel I must elaborate more. Nina Schaeffer has shown her lack of knowledge previously when she stated that she did not understand the need for separate exercise areas, keeping large dogs separate from small dogs. Her statement: "What is a mother dog to do with her puppies?" Apples to Oranges. In today's article she has never seen a live dog stretch its legs. Clueless again. All happy and contented dogs like to stretch out. Curling is a sign of being cold or fearful. So, therefore, the need for crates to properly fit the animal.

Secondly, if Mr. Brandt spoke truthfully about the demand for dogs, there would not be so many full Rescue Groups, full foster care homes, or full shelters that have to euthanize the unwanted overflow. The difference between good breeders and puppy mills is that good breeders care about their breed and do not mass produce. Puppy mills mean shameless quantity without quality. Millers don't even know what kind of dogs they have sometimes. I'm sure there is honest work that could pay the mortgage without engaging in animal suffering.

Thanks for listening. To MY ORINION .

Sincerely,

F. Jean Fellenbaum
