

Dear Mr. Bander,

Concerning the proposed dog law change Act 225, I have some serious concerns.

May I kindly give my opinions as follows.

The animal rights activists want to remove kennel operators out of business and have been working against us in the past years.

We believe they are the ones behind these law changes Act 225 and maybe they introduced the changes Act 225 to Pennell.

If these laws would go through, they would put up kennel business out of business which is what the animal rights people want. Remember they are outsiders. The laws should be primarily between the Dog Law Enforcement and the Kennel owners.

I'm not worried so much about the new laws (because I don't think many will go through)

but I'm more worried about the severity of the inspectors at the present time

I don't think it's going to work out to the Good.

An Over oppressive God, won't last long.

In order for a person to last long on any job he has to enjoy what he's doing.

~~And~~ I doubt if they enjoy what they are doing, and I doubt that they'll be able to stand the pressure over a long period of time (10 or more years). And in general owners won't be able to stand severe pressure over a long period of time either.

Why don't we work together as friends
I please give us a chance.

Instead of the inspectors ~~staying~~ fining us on the spot why don't they give us so many days to correct the errors, and if it doesn't get corrected in that matter of time they cite us,

And you can't just force us out of business because you are against Ham radio operators. We have a constitutional right to operate businesses.

Also this country was founded on "Freedom."

If these new laws would go into effect, coupled with severe inspection force, we (Ham radio operators) would be dictated to almost every move we make, with prosecutors to prosecute us if we make even small errors.

I agree we need inspection and rules but there is a limit. And we need some freedom to conduct our operations. And we also need a relaxed atmosphere.
