Dear Doctor Fasano:

I am writing you to express my support of the proposed osteopathic prescribing regulations. I feel strongly that these new regulations should be worded exactly the same as the allopathic regulations to avoid any confusion in clinical practice. Physicians Assistants have been safely prescribing under the supervision of the allopathic physicians for years, and I see no reason why D.O.'s should not be given the same ability to delegate prescriptive authority over their P.A.'s as our MD colleagues. This will undoubtedly improve the access to care, allowing P.A.'s to practice to the full extent of their training. Hospitals and practices will be more likely to hire a DO when they are given prescriptive authority. This will in turn remove some barriers to care due to reduced waiting times, and increased availability of appointments allowing the physician time to focus on more complicated cases. The individual doctor will decide whether his/her PA will prescribe (or not) and also what drugs the PA will be permitted to prescribe.

Thank you for your consideration in this matter.

Sincerely,

Michael A. Spellacy, DO
