Hi

It seems to me, that if a student has passing marks in all of his/her classes, that they are competent enough to graduate. Maybe it isn't enough to get into the college of their choice, but certainly to graduate. I think 13 years of report cards, coupled with SAT scores should certainly be enough to determine if students are competent enough to graduate. Let's not put more stress on High School Seniors than they already have.

Thanks for listening
