INDEPENDENT REGULATORY

I think it is disgraceful that we continue to allow children to be given High School diplomas when many of them cannot even read them. Our son who attends a Lower Bucks High School struggles with words when reading, and doesn't even know the meaning of most of them. He also wouldn't be able to find most of the US states on a map, let alone spell them. I support any system that educates are students. Although this wasn't asked, I would be quite pleased if the sports world would donate a % of their salaries to our teachers, but since many of those folks can't read or write they wouldn't even know what to do with such a request.
