James,

Not unlike any other educator I have a broad range of students with varying abilities and once again we are faced with a benchmark standard that proves some kids are failures.....This standardized testing is not a bad thing when put into perspective and not used as end all outcome for all students. Again the mark is being missed not by the students but by the over educated chuckle heads responsible for these ludicrous assessment instruments, NOCTI, PSSA, etc... being used for all the wrong reasons.
