REVIEW COMMISSION

I think it would be in the best interest of the graduation candidates, parents, and future employers to have a competency examination to measure just how well the students have paid attention to what they have been taught over the previous 12 years. I also think everyone should share in the responsibility of ensuring that our students actually meet, if not exceed, the established standards for the curriculum throughout the 12+ years, and not just helping them to "get by", or passing them to make them "someone else's problem now".

Thank you for the opportunity to express my opinion.
