Hello, I have inactive Dental Hygienist license in PA but now I am Dental Hygienist practicing in The State of Missouri since August 31, 2006. We have Local anthesia administration privileges in this state along with the ability to be a Public Health Dental Hygiene Practioner, I for one, I am look into the Public Health Dental Hygiene Practioner. We will need to be more responsible for our actions, the duties require you to be informed and careful, more so than in the past. The Profession is up for the task at hand. I say I am glad PA is joining the rest of the U.S. in this effort. We hygienist do fine, the dentist I am employed by are supporting my efforts to be licensened in Local Anthesia and were surprised I didn't have a license to deliver the local to my periodontal patients. So, lesson here is if you move look into what they expect you to do.
Sincerely Christine A. Sarsfield, R.D.H.
