I and my husband
Depend on our nurse Practitioner.

We rely on her, <sup>in</sup> she goes above + beyond the call of duty, she calls us personally + does all the practice of an MD, NP and more...

We do not drive, so we moved to be closer to her, so our driver has not as far to go, But @ times we have no transportation, which means we don't always receive the meds we need for on going health care... which makes it senseless to even start a medication if we cannot follow through with the medication till we are well!

This situation has happen to us many times, and we frustrate over this.

We been going to for years, and do not want to, have another Doctor, especially →

* not for a medication, which she should be able to give to her patients.

I have talked to others
whom have the same situation, this I feel should not be...
