Subject: Regulation 2777

Ahoy from Wyoming where there is also great discourse on raw milk. Here is my opinion and that of many others:

I want higher quality food and am willing to seek it out, whether vegetables, grain, meat, cheese, or raw milk. Processed food, though fine in the short run, just doesn't have the ability to sustain over the long run.

I can see jobs being made by small producers trying to fill this market. This is a natural swing of the pendulum to restore local economies. Not only should we not hinder local small producers, let's encourage them in balance with big corporations.

Pennsylvania seems to have retained their local small farm economy better than many places; and with the tide changing, even out-of-state consumers want what Pennsylvania small farmers have. Please give the unique assets of your state the opportunity to flourish.

Please reconsider/disapprove regulation 2777 of Department of Ag 2-160: Milk Sanitation. Best wishes, Susan Sweeney 3206 Land Court Cheyenne, WY 82001 307-631-5280
