

Shomper, Kris

2777

From: Tracie Drake [shalahaus@gmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, October 05, 2010 9:55 AM
To: IRRRC
Subject: Raw milk

I live in Kansas, but I wanted to make you aware my feelings about raw milk. I have 3 boys. I was like most Americans. I took my children to the doctors on a regular basis. The kids were always ill. My youngest was the worst. Almost everything he ate came out very quickly. He was not gaining weight. His bowel movements were foamy, pale, runny, etc...He was sickly. They checked him for parasites and then told me they didn't know what to do. I was told to put him on soy milk. Have you read how bad soy milk is for boys? They are not suppose to get estrogen! Someone told me about raw milk. At first I was scared, I admit. But we already saved him from e-coli from our supposed clean water source so we figure to give it a try. That was almost 4 yrs ago. He no longer get sick. He is a robust healthy young lad. He no longer grabs his tummy and falls to the floor with cramps (as he still does if he gets store milk).

I beg of you, please leave us raw milk drinkers alone. Leave the farmers alone. The Queen of England drinks raw milk and Europe sells raw milk in vending machine why can't I buy it from a farmer and take on my own risk? For once ignore the corporate dragon breathing down your back and let us eat as we choose!

Thank you for your time,

Tracie Drake
Tonganoxie, Ks