Concerning the availability of raw milk.

I am responding to the frightening possibility that a law could be passed prohibiting a consumer from being free to purchase raw milk directly from the producer. My family has been consuming raw milk for 30 plus years. We enjoy good health and have never experienced any illness related to drinking raw milk. All bacteria are not a pathogen. We actually require certain bacteria in order to sustain a healthy intestinal flora. We believe strongly that we consumers should retain the ability and the right to buy our raw milk straight from the producer. This indeed improves our local economy and improves our health.

Responsibly & Sincerely,

Robert & Diane Good
