Subject: Commercial Kennel Regualtions-Wire Flooring

Message:

I am absolutely appalled that wire flooring is even a consideration when the 2008 Dog Law clearly states NO WIRE FLOORING. NO MEANS NO. The Bureau of Dog Law does not have the authority to create a new set of regulations. BDLE should do everything in their power to enforce the new law and do the humane thing by making these poor dogs' lives as comfortable as possible. Lord knows the breeders don't. Why does Jessie Smith consistently side with breeders? This industry should be completely banned. We should not be licensing breeders to produce thousands of dogs each year when tens of thousands of dogs end up in shelters across the state, languishing for months, only to be euthanized needlessly. If Commercial Kennel Owners were not allowed to have so many dogs, then they would be able to properly care for the few, if any, pregnant and nursing mothers on solid flooring by being able to clean up after them - then this would not even be an issue!! GET RID OF WIRE FLOORING.
