Subject: legislation protecting puppies and dogs in breeding

Both my wife Sue and I would like to believe that the state of Pennsylvania of which I have such fond memories would have the common decency to protect all animals including dogs raised for sale and profit from mistreatment and abuse.

One would assume that if Pa.'s own canine health board recommends legislation protecting puppies and dogs in breeding facilities that this legislation would be passed by the Pennsylvania state government with no hesitation.

If puppy breeders in Pa. have nothing to hide why would they object? If they do object I am sure it tells us all what is REALLY going on in their breeding business.

Sincerely,
Andy and Sue Merrill
