

2802

RECEIVED

From: Hart [bhart25@verizon.net]
Sent: Monday, December 28, 2009 6:30 PM
To: EP, RegComments
Subject: Outdoor Furnace

JAN - 4 REC'D

INDEPENDENT REGULATORY REVIEW COMMISSION

At what point is society going to wake up? We have burnt wood since the beginning of time now all the sudden its deadly? come on. My neighbors who burn wood in their house put out the same amount of smoke as my outdoor stove. With my stove 200 feet away from my house I can sleep well everynight knowing my house is not going to burn down from chimney fire. With a stove outside you can burn wood normally left lay because you don't have to just burn good dry hardwoods, you can burn pine and hemlock. I have had my stove for 3 years I live right in the heart of town nobody has ever complained but I have about 20 feet of pipe on my stove plus I only fire between the end of september and middle of april. I heat my house and garage about 2500 square feet for probably pennies a day. I can be sure you will not heat any cheaper. If these are banned I can also be sure that some type of government assistance will be coming to my house and probably alot more because most people didn't have $10,000 to throw out the window to put these in we were trying to save money but once again the government has us by the balls. So please when making these regulations use some common sense because there is more good than bad from these...Thanks Josh Hart