

RECEIVED

From: Rebecca Obleski [obleskidesign@hotmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 23, 2009 7:38 PM
To: EP, RegComments
Subject: Wood Boiler Regulations

JAN - 4 REC'D
INDEPENDENT REGULATORY
REVIEW COMMISSION

Hello,

I wanted to address the issue of regulating Wood Boilers. I know that if left up to local government ,regulations will most likely never happen. Look how long they have been selling those horrible polluters already and so far nothing !When I bought my propane heating system a few years ago I was sure that they were going to ban those belching polluting outdoor boilers. It hasn't happened yet. I would have loved to have gotten a heating system for what those boilers cost. But I "bit the bullet" rather than contribute to the rumination of our air quality. As for the people that sell them and bought them,did they really think that those things were good for the environment ? How long did they think that they could pollute our air before some kind of regulations were addressed ?

As I drive the rural roads heading to work ,the valleys are filled with the hanging smoke from them. You don't dare open the car window or the stink from the garbage that people burn in the stoves gets into the vehicle. And then I too stink ! My friends children had to walk past someone's "Belcher" to get the school bus. They complained that the stink got into their cloths and stuck there.

I moved to beautiful Potter county to get away from the horrible air pollution in Pittsburgh, among other reasons.

Please help us get these BELCHING polluters under control ! Anyone with any concern about our air quality and environment would never own one of those horrible things !

Thank You for your time,
Rebecca Obleski
844 Prouty Road
Austin, Pa 16720

---

Hotmail: Trusted email with Microsoft's powerful SPAM protection. Sign up now.