Hello,

I have used a outside furnace for a year now since the oil prices went up to four dollars a gallon and it has been a great help in our budget and we get our wood from our own property and most of the wood we use is laying around on the ground as we live on five acres. I believe we should be able to burn wood as it is a natural resource, but i can see were if there wasnt enough room between houses it would make a differnce but if you live in the country i don't see the issue and people burn wood in thier fireplaces so its the same thing.

Thank you,
