

2802

From: Rick Zelehoski [rickzelly@yahoo.com]
Sent: Wednesday, January 13, 2010 8:29 AM
To: EP, RegComments
Subject: Wood fired Boilers (outdoor furnace)

RECEIVED

2010 JAN 19 PM 1:42

Don't penalize everyone! Address the problem. I purchased and installed an outdoor furnace after much research. I broke no laws and talked with members of the Bourough council before I made my decision. I bother no one and respect my neighbors. I do not burn my outdoor furnace during fair weather. I don't start until the end of September and shut in down the end of April. I have neighbors who heat with coal (indoor boilers) their stoves produce much more smoke than our boiler. I use clean dry seasoned wood and produce very little smoke.

If I had to have a stack two feet higher than my neighbors homes I could not comply as I am on a hillside!

I have invested thousands of dollars and have no other source of heat! If there was a question of legality I would not have invested in this furnace and would have purchased a new gas furnace instead.

Rick Zelehoski
421 Willow Street
Johnsonburg PA 15845