Fight for Your Rights: Tell DEP to Leave Your Boilers Alone

Big government is at it again.

The state's Environmental Quality Board (EQB), which develops regulations for the Department of Environmental Protection, is proposing significant new restrictions on the use of outdoor wood-fired boilers.

Many people rely on these boilers to affordably heat their homes and should not be subject to unwanted and unneeded regulation by the state. Local governments already have the authority to regulate these boilers if needed. If these state regulations are allowed to go through as-is, there's no telling what the Rendell administration will go after next.

Hands off! sick and tired of government sticking their noses in the business of the taxpayer, and here is just one more thing you need to keep your hands off!

sick and tired of government in everything we do. NO GOVERNMENT IN HEALTHCARE EITHER!

NO GOV'T IN ANYTHING EXCEPT THE ONE THING OUR CONSTITUTION SAYS YOU SHOULD AND THAT IS F O R THE D E F E N S E OF AMERICA! BACK OFF. LEAVE US ALONE.
