Subject: Wood-fired boilers

2009 NOV 30 PM 3:35

INDEPENDENT REGULATORY REVIEW COMMISSION

To Whom It May Concern:

The proposed legislation seems an unnecessary and unjustified intrusion by government. Rather than deal with the possibility of local air pollution issues on a statewide basis, please let counties and townships establish their own policies. In many parts of this state, burning wood is a greener form of heating than oil or gas, that has to be trucked or piped in from far away, and much more economical. Wood boilers might not make sense in urban or suburban areas without these kind of regulations, but there are lots of rural areas where these proposed regs. will hurt people for almost no reason.

Sincerely,
Lawson M. Smith
