Subject: Wood fired boilers.

DEC 7 REC'D

INDEPENDENT REGULATORY REVIEW COMMISSION

I understand that the government is now considering new regulations on Wood Fired Boilers that have, in recent years, become an affordable and available means of supplementing home heating needs.

We don't need the government regulating everything WE THE PEOPLE do. Every time the wind blows lately, the government somehow feels a need to regulate something. As a citizen and a taxpayer of Pennsylvania I am joining with the multitude of other voices in this Commonwealth to demand that the government stay out of our personal and private practices. Wood burning is one of the oldest, most affordable and practical means that the citizens of Pennsylvania have to heat their homes during the cold winters in the Northeast and we don't need to worry about whether we're making the government happy or not.

The limits of our tolerance are being pressed on all sides in these trying times we live in, and more un-necessary and burdensome regulations are simply not going to be acceptable to the hard-working people of this Commonwealth. The government has long since overstepped their Constitutional limits and have not been challenged on it until now. The limit has been met, and we are no longer going to just sit by while the government takes away one right after another.

Thank you.
