INDEPENDENT REGULATORY REVIEW COMMISSION

PLEASE, do not pass new regulations and restrictions on outdoor boilers. People are trying to keep their homes heated and with all the economic problems currently plaguing this state and country the last thing we need is more regulations. Along with the regulations would be more time and money spent by the state to enforce the new regulations.

Why not just try to find ways to cut cost for a while and perhaps reduce the expenses that we have to pay for through our taxes. Let the people use the means that are available to them to get through the winter.

I personally do not have a boiler but know those who do. They produce a steady comfortable heat and are economical to run. A lot less polluting than many other forms of heat,

Thank you,
