Dear Pennsylvania Environmental Quality Board,

The surge in Gas drilling in Pennsylvania has given opportunities to many for jobs, income, balanced budgets. But the recent tax benefit granted by Gov Rendell indicates that the special interest group of gas companies and gas drilling companies, has a powerful hand in Harrisburg.

It concerns me that this hand may be so powerful that existing regulations may be overlooked and environmental contamination result.

Your job is a fiduciary responsibility to the citizens of PA. As such you must be a persistent irritant to the forces of greed. If you're not finding conflict with these groups every day then you are not pushing hard enough for compliance. Or, the regulations are not strong enough.

Mike Cawley

Sincerely,
