Comment posting for the IRRC regarding proposed law 16A-7101.

It seems the government is once again going to try to enact a law under the pressure of owing a debt to someone who is calling for restitution. By permitting one company to monopolize on the certification of crane operators is a no win situation for those of us in the construction industry. It's only going to drive up the costs and ensure the profits go one place. There are other companies that are nationally recognized, offer NCCA accredited certifications and recognized by Federal OSHA. Qualifying companies should be permitted to compete for business and should be listed in the final version of the law.
