I feel that for a family day care, that is quite an investment. I do have an assistant teacher with me in my family day care and she is always current with her professional development classes. Being a small day care, I do cover the cost for her. I feel that 24 would be a lot for an assistant in a family day care (not to mention the cost). I do know it is important, but doubling the hours for the small day cares, would be hard to do financially and also with time so limited. It is hard for me to get away when I have to be here 11 hours a day and also balance my family life. I agree that there needs to be an increase, but 16 – 20 may be more realistic for family day cares (biannually).
