Sir or Ma'am,

I am not really a huge fan of people going and beating each other up for fun, but if they are willing to take a risk then let them do it. Intervening in stuff like this just wastes government time and money, which is clearly tough to come by in this day and age. People are probably emailing you and talking of how Ohio is getting extra revenue and all of this other stuff, and that may be true. If that is the case, why hinder our citizens with rules that really do not help anybody? Make a VERY simple law that says the government is not responsible and that is cannot be sued. Have them sign a contract/waiver and you have nothing to worry about. You will never have to deal with silly legislation like this again and our taxpayer's money can be put to better use.

The government is there for the people, but I know you understand that not everyone can be pleased. I do hope that this is taken into consideration, but you should be bombarded with more important things than this on a daily basis. Thank you for performing a public service, I sure hope that you are one of the people doing it for the right reasons.

Sincerely,

A citizen of the greatest state/country on earth.
