Message:

I am very concerned about implementing Common Core into our schools. Our children are unique individuals and should be treated as such. The Federal Government looks at them as equal, but this approach crushes their spirit and individualism. There is no room for their gifts and talents to flourish in this one-size-fits all. Children should be influenced by local community --leaders and members(post offices, store clerks,field trips to local business and sights), not only by peers in a cookie-cutter atmosphere. The government is too big and bloated to be efficient and it will collect personal information on our children and their families it has no rights to. Who will be covering the costs of this implementation? My tax dollars?! Please refuse Common Core curriculum and its values for our state of PA. Thank you for listening to my views.

Message:

Dear IRRC Members and Staff, My kids are in high school and I meet with their teachers on every parent-teacher event. What I see is a very scary change going on in the educational system. It started with my kids being taught how to do math in a different way that is longer and harder than the way we learned it. The math teacher says it's about following a procedure not about getting the right answer. I'm sorry but would we be able to get a man on the moon if we didn't get the right answer? In the chemistry books that I used there were comments in the beginning about how the book focuses on "solving problems". Not in today's "Common Core Edition"! They are focused on concepts only. My take away from common core is that it's a system that will dumb down our kids, gather data on them and teach them how to follow directions so they can easily be controlled. I understand that the program is tied to school funding and the schools are being strong armed into accepting the new system. This is an outrage to everyone who researched the truth about the program. I urge you to stop common core. Sincerely, Don Avgerinos

I feel the Common Core Standards limit the teacher's ability to teach children what they really need. It also makes school very institutional without any room for creativity. State testing is certainly not a true measure of the student's ability. We need to remember that not all children learn the same and flexibility needs to be aloud in the school system with the strict rule and guidelines of the Common Core Standards.

I urge you to vote no on Common Core Education. It takes away the decisions on education from local school districts and parents. Instead it gives power to a few federal cronies. Big government has proven time and time again to be wasteful and show poor judgment in what works best. Common Core provides that a Kindergarten teacher's pay is based on how well her students test in 3rd grade. Which may have absolutely no connection to how well that Kindergarten teacher did her job. A local principal is a much better judge of job performance. This is just one example of many ways Common Core & Federal control have a very bad effect on our schools.

This is a misguided attempt to centralize learning standards in Washington rather than at the local level where specific adaptations can be made to meet local needs and demands. "One size fits all" rarely fits anyone well and this is just as true in education. Leave control of educational standards in local hands.

I have heard some very bad things about Common Core and C Scope. At best, these programs take the authority to manage curriculum from the state and local folks who know their kids best, and replaces it with a one size fits all national program. At it's worst, curriculum becomes a tool for pushing the agenda of people like Bill Gates. If you haven't done so already, go check out what Gates said about it at the 2009 National Council of State Legislators conference. It's absolutely creepy!

I'm worried that you're about to adopt Common Core standards - an initiative which significantly erodes local and state control of school curriculum. There is a misplaced emphasis on common mass learning. Children do not fully "learn" through memorization. Drilling children until they memorize the curriculum may help them pass a test but it rarely results in true understanding. Every child is different, and strictly teaching the "common core" will only impede exceptional students from reaching beyond the mediocre. Common Core cheapens our children's education and further erodes the nation's tradition of Federalism. You would do well to remember that simply changing standards is no guarantee students will actually learn any more than they do now.

Please, please, please do not enact Common Core in our states. I have 4 children, 2 of which are school age. They are intelligent children and yearn to be challenged, not dumbed down. Why are we not celebrating our achievers and students that strive to excel? Why are we trying to create an average society? That's exactly what Common Core will do. We don't need nor want an average society. We want a great society. We were always taught to set your goals high, even a little out of reach. That way, you are always striving for something and trying to do better. However, the Common Core is teaching our children that mediocre is just fine and you don't need to try very hard. This goes against everything our country was built on. If Common Core goes into full effect, I truly believe that I will have no choice but to either homeschool my children or put them in private school. I want my children to succeed and excel in life and I strongly believe that Common Core is not going to support that in any way.

An added benefit of this is that our children will not be able to read the original documents that are the basis of our country. Common Core takes away local control making local school boards unnecessary and parental views about their children's education irrelevant. Common Core will collect personal data on every student and their families without specific permission, a clear invasion of privacy. To whom it may concern, I would like to take this opportunity to write a not so lengthy message on my view and many views of people I know. How can you honestly believe that introducing a system like Common Core can be helpful to our children? You will be ultimately producing a dumber society who will think that it's alright to be wrong as long as you can explain why. This is not how things work in the real world and it is not how we should teach our children. I am sorry that some of the students are lacking the mental capacities to perform at their grade level, but who's fault is that? And why should we push them through just to make them less ready and adequate to face reality? I urge you greatly to throw out the Common Core curriculum for Pennsylvania schools and make teachers do their jobs and actually teach students how to be educated and give the right answers.

Dear IRRC Staff & Members, I wish to urge you to reject the Common Core Regulations that will be reviewed in the coming weeks. The Pennsylvania education system has been extremely successful in it's own right and my family is strongly opposed to consolidating the program into a system that, quite frankly, will decrease the standards of the curriculum. Looking into this, I am shocked to see how the very individual successes that communities have attained, are being standardized to fit a single mold throughout our entire country. This not only compromises the excellence we have all fought to achieve, but also removes local control and serves as yet another socialized tool within a very dysfunctional environment. The current curriculum is far superior to what is being introduced as it's replacement. Additionally, this will yet again be another program that many Americans are opposed to, yet will take more of their hard earned money to support. Once again, I urge you to reject the Common Core Program and put an end to eliminating individual excellence by conforming to a program that rationalizes and standardizes mediocrity. Sincerely, Tim Kwiat Lancaster, PA.

My children are in the West Mifflin Area School District and although common core is just beginning to be implemented here I am already noticing many things about the new curriculum that are troubling. Some of these things include not teaching cursive hand writing, turning away from teaching spelling words to enhance literacy (which is needed more than ever due to the age of texting), changes in the grading scale, and a push to pass tests rather than to thoroughly teach children. As a parent this is scary because I know that this is only the beginning. If these are the negative changes I am seeing already I fear to think what will be next. My children have always had a hunger for learning as I believe many do. With this new curriculum I am afraid that mediocracy is becoming the expectation and desired result rather than each child having the option and in turn the drive to strive for greatness. Our children are the future. They deserve the opportunity to be all that they can be without being limited by a "dumbed down" style of curriculum! At one time in our nations history the children were expected to learn much more than even the recent pre-common core curriculum. And guess what, they were more than capable! We should strive to teach our children more, not less and I know that with the proper encouragement most of them will rise to the challenge and in many cases surprise even themselves. If we are to make changes to the current system it should be to provide a better way to ensure that those that struggle can achieve higher goals. Limiting the heights that can be reached by those that do not struggle is simply wrong and wreck-less. Common core is damaging to our youth and the future of our communities and our country. I hope that you will take this into consideration when deciding the fate of our schools and our children.

Enough said. Our kids need to be taught that they live in the greatest country ever formed. One that has contributed more to the betterment of the world than there is space here to name. Common Core takes education out of the community moves away from PARENT RIGHTS. Teachers now look at parents (non-teachers) and do not listen to our concerns. What will happen and who will ultimately be responsible for making choices that effect my child? I DO NOT want the federal government to control my child's education. You will force parents to take children out of public schools and home school. The internet and home schooling will give parents control of their childrens education. Please strengthen PARENTS RIGHTS. Thank you

After doing some research, I am writing to ask that Common Core NOT be implemented in Pennsylvania. I see several issues that trouble me; 1. Federal law states that the DOE shall not be involved in developing, supervising or controlling instructional materials or curriculum. 2. Setting a single, national standards eliminates competition among states/local districts to elevate knowledge. 3. Abandons classical literature for government manuals which sounds like indoctrination. 4. It provides for the collection of invasive data on students; biometrics, health records, religion, political persuasion, etc. 5. The material misrepresents our founding documents to undermine concepts of self-government, personal liberty and responsibility. 6. Promotion of the 3E's: Equity = Social Justice, Economy = Redistribution, Environment = Animals have the same or more rights than humans. I would hope that you can see how damaging this would be to our children. The only rational explanation for proceeding control is to 'dumb down' our kids and make them easier to control from 'central planning'. Common Core does not promote the ideals which made America successful and a global force for good. It just kills our identity and makes us satisfied with mediocrity.

Hello, I'm writing the IRRC to request that Common Core be removed as Pennsylvania's base curriculum. I've researched this system and find it to be destructive to our education system. It will further erode our already weak education system by taking away most of the parent's rights to be involved in their children's education and turning teachers into administrators. Being a father of two, I've seen the results of watering down the system since I attended public schools 40 years ago. In tenth grade a few years ago, my son had not been taught what The Bill of Rights was yet. From all that I've read about Common Core, it will water down the system even further. I ask that you please remove this curriculum from Pennsylvania's school districts. Thank you, John R. Marshall Jr.

I exhort you to not include Pennsylvania in the national common core system. I want curriculum and school choices to come from local communities, schools, whether private or public, that know the children in their community. We need Pennsylvania people choosing what is best for our children. I have complete confidence that Pennsylvania is capable of setting standards and choosing curriculum that is best for our children. We don't need to rely on the monolith system that is coming out of the Federal Government. Keep control of our Pennsylvania schools in Pennsylvania and empower local parents and teachers to make decisions. Common Core clearly is undermining this. It demands that our schools meet unyielding and overbearing guidelines and once the decision power is ceded to Common Core, there will be only more requirements and regulation. Keep Pennsylvania independent! Our commonwealth has the expertise to make the right education decisions for our children and communities. Thank you for your time. Hello, I understand that you are soon to begin review of the Common core Standards. I am writing to respectfully express my concerns. I also understand that this will be a highly controversial Topic and I don't envy your position. Good Luck with whatever decision you make. Form the information I have read, Common core will (for lack of a better word) dumb down standards and take local control away from communities. Some of the example math questions I have examined seem to be more like a social statement from a progressive than anything to do with learning math. I also have a concern with data gathering. I understand that common core has a requirement to gather data on all family members. After recent news of the IRS and NSA scandals, I don't need any more proof that public employee bureaucrats cannot be trusted to protect our private information. Please don't drag Pennsylvania one step closer to the big brother Orwellian world that removes freedom and opportunity for our young people. Best Regards, Mark Countouris

I am writing to express my opposition to the new common core standard. After 30 years of different Federal standards, which fail, why does the government continue with this approach? The Federal Government has no place on our local schools. Lowering the standards in schools is a disgrace! Never mind children in my district who starting the math program under one failed government program are coming home crying because the "new way" is confusing. Ever since the implementation of the Federal Department of Education, standards have been lowered, and our society reflects this. Stop indoctrinating our children! Parents know the government is doing this and we take action against it, therefore, it will be another failed project.

Members of the IRRC, As a taxpaying citizen of our great Commonwealth, I earnestly implore you to investigate thoroughly the ramifications of adopting Common Core curriculum into our State Education system. As enticing as the subsidies appear to be from the Gates Foundation, I suspect that they are no better than a "Trojan Horse", that once adopted, will infest the curriculum with an entire host of socio-political poison that will serve only to indoctrinate our innocent children and fail to actually educate them. I realize our public school systems are cash strapped, but we need not respond imprudently by begging from entities that really do not have our children's best interests in mind. Our Districts really need to be put to task first in responsibly using the tax dollars they are given rather than squandering millions of dollars. Fiscal responsibility is the remedy not begging to eager slave masters.

Having taught in public schools as well as private for twenty years, I can honestly say that most top-down approaches do not deliver a sustainable product in education. That is because students are so individualistic and need individual standards until much older than these testing paradigms provide. Furthermore, to allow a monolithic system to take hold in our schools, negates the testimony of history where we see again and again that the powers that be do not and cannot foresee all eventualities that might occur. Without various power structures there will be no room for the individual or individual state, school system, or parent to voice their dissent to present or future inequities or incorrect paradigms that might be presented as dogma. It is a system that is ripe for abuse even before being implemented.

Federal programs like no child left behind have been a dismal failure. 4. States are being lured by promises of money but it never works out the way they promise. Look at Obamacare. Subject: Get rid of Common Core

Message:

I find the common core curriculum to be anti-American. I do not approve of the leftist, politically correct agenda it indoctrinates our children into believing. I especially disapprove of the course in which students learn about Islam and are asked to choose a Muslim name. I am very involved in my daughters education and I review with her what she learns in school. I am very troubled in particular what she is being taught about our U.S. Constitution particularly the Bill of Rights. She is not being taught that the purpose of the second amendment is the right of the people to bear arms to protect themselves from a tyrannical government.. I read a part of the Constitution each week with her and we discuss it. She went to school and told her class the real meaning of the Second Amendment. A teacher's aide remarked that gun ownership was bad and should be outlawed. This is so wrong! Our schools should be enlightening the minds of our children about our history and the meaning of our Bill of Rights instead of promoting a liberal agenda. You can rest assured that I will always be involved in my daughter's education and I will "undo" and "correct" and liberal agenda pushed onto my daughter in the guise of education. Another thing I do not like is my daughter is being taught we are a democracy. We are not a democracy, the U.S. is a republic based on the law embodied in the Constitution. No where in the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution does the word democracy appear. Our forefathers were very careful not to include the word democracy in their efforts because democracies historically are always short lived and lead eventually to anarchy and/or an oligarchy. Please get rid of this liberal agenda known as Common Core and teach facts so our children can make up their own minds based on the facts they learn rather than a liberal agenda pushed on them. Sincerely, Robert A. Zanol

Please, I beg of you, get Common Core out of our PA schools. Common Core removes teachers creativity, adaptability, and parents are forbidden to see the curriculums! It data mines our children to pidgeon hole them into jobs types as early as 7 years of age. I'm afraid the curriculum is revisionist history at best, indoctrination at worst. We can do better, Only reason Common Core is here is due to the 2009 Stimulus bill. If it's so great, why can't parents see the curriculum???? Thank you. Kevin Clancy

Subject: Common Core in PA -- No!

Message:

Dear Commission Members, I am a mother of an eighth grader and an 11th grader in Pennsylvania schools. My younger child is in public school, while my older is in a private school in PA. I have serious concerns about the implementation of Common Core standards in PA schools. My biggest concerns are the federal government's intrusion in the states' decisions on the school curricula and the collection of data from and about my family other than the standard information I provide on emergency forms each year for the schools' use. I am also very concerned about the current administration's unethical work practices that would likely carry over to their control of state school systems. My children currently get instruction that is often enhanced by local community experiences and current events. They also receive very distinct instruction based on the experiences of their talented teachers. I fear these more unique learning experiences will be a thing of the past if all schools are forced to follow the same curricula, destroying creativity in teaching and learning. These are just some of my concerns. I hope you will please listen to the people of Pennsylvania, particularly parents who have to send their children to these schools, and that you will vote NO to implementing Common Core in PA schools. I think PA should see what it does to school systems in other states that choose to implement it and decide after several years if it really was a good thing. I think the answer will be NO. Sincerely, Kim B. Gettysburg, PA

We run successful businesses or are high achievers in the companies we work for. We are able to converse about a variety of subjects across the board and this was accomplished because of the current school system. The Common Core and its standards are a set-up for national standardized tests, tests that can't evaluate complex thought, can't avoid cultural bias, can't measure non-verbal learning, can't predict anything of consequence and this will not assist our children or grandchildren to be as successful as we are. As a parent I DO NOT want Common Core implemented in Pennsylvania. DO NOT IMPLEMENT COMMON CORE.

Subject: Say No to Common Core in Pennsylvania

Message:

I am asking the Governor, the General Assembly, and the State Board of Education, to immediately take the steps necessary to rescind Common Core adoption, the race to the top application, the No Child Left Behind waver, and all other requirements placed upon the state that are related to these, and return to the Pennsylvania standards in use prior to the Common Core adoption. I also request the Pennsylvania Governor and the Secretary of Education to review all documentation related to such applications and contracts as mentioned above to ensure our state sovereignty is held inviolate. I further request that this review of programs, documents and applications, include an examination to ensure no private or personal information about students is transmitted outside of local schools and districts (except as is presently permitted by state law). Inasmuch as the Pennsylvania State Board of Education adopted Common Core State Standards before they were even written, failed to perform a cost analysis related to statewide adoption, and failed to hold well publicized public meetings where citizens could review the actual standards prior to adoption, I request that the state legislature hold public hearings this session with a thorough inquiry into what it will cost to implement these standards, the issue of adopting standards that have not yet been written, the quality of the standards that have been written (English and Math), and how CCS will affect dissemination of student information (privacy issues). Please kill the Common Core here in Pennsylvania... I pray that we will again find favor in God's eyes. We are not Europe; we are not the country from which everyone is fleeing. We are the country where everyone longs to be. Common Core is "dumbing down" our children. We need teachers and administrators that are willing to teach our children to think. Teach and challenge. Allow success and overachievement. Teach the truth about our founding, where we came from, our morals, our values. We have some of our nation's finest teachers and parents here in PA... We can best decide ourselves how to maintain our values and improve our educational programs. We must have less government involvement... Sincerely, Robert Kuhn
