Everyone learns in different ways because each person is unique Each person has their own strengths. Some excel in certain things, for example Science and others may find History or Math more interesting and excel in those subjects. In my opinion the teacher should be able to use the technique that will bring the student to their full potential. Common Core will not work in a class setting where students come from different cultural backgrounds. Diversity can be a basis to extend education beyond the conventional subjects. In my opinion Common Core herds everyone into the same corral. Common Core will prevent individuality and progress. I am not in favor of Common Core. Is it the aim of Common Core to keep the youth of the USA inferior,so that will not be able to compete with the other progressive countries?
