Dear Mr. Sumner,

I am in the fourth best school district in the State of Pennsylvania, Pridyffrii/ Easttown. Why are we fixing something that isn't broken? This year my youngest daughter entered Kindergarten. At my parent teacher conference, I asked her teacher about the Common Core curriculum. She explained to me how last year the lesson plans were such a disaster that all of the Kindergarten teachers in the district got together and threw it out!

Schools work better when they are run on the local level. Over many decades, TE parents have helped make our schools exceptional. Why don't you take what works and emulate it in the underperforming schools. Please don't fix what isn't broken here! We don't need Common Core.

Sincerely,

TracyAnn Gould
