Subject: concern

In reading the changes to Chpt. 4 regulations, I have concerns about graduation requirements. This information may have been overlooked but students challenging the exams is not addressed. If a student chooses to take the exam without taking the course, can they challenge the exam by passing at the proficiency level? The student would meet the graduation requirement of passing the exam but does not meet the requirement of taking the course. The regulations also states that the child completes the exam once they have completed the course. This will not allow students to challenge the exam. Are students not able to challenge the exam?
Am I missing information or not interpreting it correctly?
Sandy
