First off it concerns me that I'm trying to support my family with my Passion and now I have to pay more money. Why I ask? A cosmetology license is half the price and no ce credits, and they support the board just fine. More of the graduating classes never continue their licensing because they can not afford it, but yet you are raising the prices more than double and expect people to to continue with their passion. I do not see this helping anyone but fattening the pockets at the top. This is disheartening that I may have to quit something I love and won't have the money to continue learning my passion as a healer. Please consider another option on this price hike. Thank you for your time.
