I have recently been informed by a school that I once attended that the fees for licensure will be increasing dramatically. I think this is absurd. First of all, my ex-husband is a chiropractor. His continuing education classes are a fraction of what massage therapists are. Secondly, they are not required to do ethics every other year and mandated CPR classes. These are all expenses that we have every two years and a massage therapist makes much less than a doctor. It will cause people to not continue with licensing and you will not be able to enforce everyone who even now practices without a license. I sincerely hope you do not make this increase and allow us to continue making a living for our families.
