Subject: childcare regulations proposed changes comments

Hi -I have been conducting supervision compliance training and follow up technical assistance for many years now. (7 current cases on my desk) . Often when we get a regulatory referral from the western region DHS office it asks specifically for a conversation on "hands free tag systems" or photo ID cards so that staff may take a name to face count, not just a head count during transitions etc. Trainers and consultants have encouraged the use of photo tags hung on lanyards or carabineers for yeas and I am surprised that is not part of the supervision requirement for facilities. I love that you are giving family childcare the ability to use technology for supervision but feel that needs some additional clarification as to where children should be (same floor versus a different floor in house , inside versus outside when monitor is used). I know that providers will have questions and hope you will provide regional meetings to clarify things once these changes are adopted. Thanks for the opportunity to review and comment . I have been in the field for about 35 years and know we must change to keep up with the times.
