In regards to RGGI,
I am imploring the Environmental Quality Board to see the passing of such regulations as RGGI will out right devastate our great state of PA. We do not need RGGI, which is an over reach of governor Wolf and those who have written it. The people of PA do not want more over reach or more regulation. The regulations in place are more than sufficient, they are out right over board, above and beyond what is asked of our power plants and companies. The companies have sunk hundreds of millions into scrubbers and cleaning equipment and are running clean and efficient. They are not your 1950's plants! We will be losing jobs and the economical impact will be devastating if RGGI passes. That alone out weighs any good it would do. The good that it would do isn't even studied! How can you pass such a thing without doing an environmental and economical impact study? Are you nuts! Don't sell PA out for something that we all know would devastate the state with the shuttering of plants and jobs, leaving the plant worker, miners, electricians, welders, mechanics, equipment operators, engineers, safety officers, state inspectors, equipment manufacturers, construction contractors, janitors and their families without means. The list of those devastated would be like a bomb going off in the middle of a city. Wolf, as we know, is a dictator! He, of course, wants this to pass. Shame on those who thought this to be a good idea. He, and they, haven't done their homework, but you should. Do NOT pass RGGI. If it passes, PA will be sold out from under the people who built it. Our coal, our states great resource, is already being shipped over seas. Is that what the end game is? Do you want even more of our resources going to another country that doesn't care about their people and directly dumps garbage in the seas and doesn't have close to the regulations we have to protect their people? It's traitorous and evil! Do your homework and at least do an economical and environmental study before passing something you know nothing about. Green sounds good until you realize its greener from the fertilizer of blood and bodies built on borrowed time. Please, do NOT pass RGGI.

Sincerely, Diane Roy, my family, and my many neighbors and their families.
