I doubt these comments will change anyone's mind because proposals like these aren't about helping anyone they are about power. You don't care about the people you govern, particularly those in the middle class. It's common knowledge that this will simply pass the cost on to everyday Pennsylvanias through cost increases necessary to sustain profitability. When government over regulates an industry the people lose. This move isn't about helping people its about appeasing your base to remain in power and keeping your boot on the neck of the the industry. Our governor has said the words "in these unprecedented times" hundreds of times asking for us to comply with the next set of useless regulations knowing full well it was destroying thousands of livelihoods. Now, in the middle of killing thousands of jobs he sticks his hand out asking for more. When is enough, enough?
