I am very much in favor of any government program designed to transition away from fossil fuels to renewable energy including a carbon tax.

Global warming is the worst threat we face today. We've been suffering from droughts here in Western PA for years now. But of course this is a global issue that also has long-term implications. Young people understand it, you don't need a PhD, you simply need a moral backbone with concern for others - all others will be dramatically impacted in the near future if we don't start to move to renewable fuels.
