I see most environmental rules and regulations in the United States as useless and and as a financial burden on corporations and citizens alike. No matter what the US does it pales in comparison to the non actions in nations like China, India and Russia, the true polluters. These rules are simply a tax designed as a cash cow in perpetuity. You can tax corporations all you want, they don't care. Corporations don't pay taxes, consumers pay taxes.This is just another GREEN scam from my perspective. Green is the new red, as in communist totalitarianism. Let us know when you can do something useful, like stop a hurricane or control the daily weather and I'll support that. Until then keep your greedy hands off my wallet.
