

#3290

Form Letter A 267-313

DH, MMRegulations

From: Allen Hasara <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:22 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Allen Hasara

Mr. Allen Hasara
413 Robin rd
Hatboro , PA 19040
ahasara@ufcw1776.org

DH, MMRegulations

From: Amanda Zawistoski <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 4:46 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Amanda Zawistoski

Ms. Amanda Zawistoski
8247 Highline Blvd
Erie, PA 16509
Angelgirl122801@yahoo.com

DH, MMRegulations

From: Analeese Kryjer <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 10:16 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Analeese kryjer

Ms. Analeese Kryjer
9423 Tulip Street
Philadelphia , PA 19114
Kanaliese1011@gmail.com
2672165062

DH, MMRegulations

From: arnold stephens jr <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 8:53 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
arnold stephens

Mr. arnold stephens jr
p o box 375
phoenixville , PA 19460
arnoldxxx45@yahoo.com

DH, MMRegulations

From: Barbara Johnson <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:06 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely, Barbara
Barbara Johnson

Ms. Barbara Johnson
108 Fischer lane
Reading , PA 19601
bjohnson@ufcw1776.org
6103727721

DH, MMRegulations

From: Billie Moyer <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 3:15 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Billie Moyer

Mrs. Billie Moyer
30 Nora
Clark, PA 16113
clarkboro2010@gmail.com
724-456-0140

DH, MMRegulations

From: Casey Reed <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:09 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Casey Reed

Mrs. Casey Reed
201 Hillcrest Ave
Fairless Hills, PA 19021
strpop1@aol.com
2673932365

DH, MMRegulations

From: Catherine Kaufman <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 9:18 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Catherine Kaufman

Mrs. Catherine Kaufman
104 FREEDOM CT
CORAOPOLIS, PA 15108
kaufmank32@gmail.com
4127607827

DH, MMRegulations

From: Catherine Paninski <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:15 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Catherine Paninski

Mrs. Catherine Paninski
1005 N James St
Hazleton, PA 18201
cpaninski@ufcw1776.org
610-513-9961

DH, MMRegulations

From: Cheryl McNamara <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 2021 4:46 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Cheryl McNamara

Ms. Cheryl McNamara
235 tree top terrace
Stroudsburg, PA 18391
Cmcnamara73@hotmail.com
6102167695

DH, MMRegulations

From: Damian Penn <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Thursday, March 25, 2021 8:26 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely, Damian penn
D.penn

Mr. Damian Penn
649 hollis st
Pgh, PA 15219
Damienpenn2020@gmail.com
412 232 0559

DH, MMRegulations

From: Daneen Boyce <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:19 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Daneen Boyce

Mrs. Daneen Boyce
280 Warren Drive
Wrightstown, NJ 08562
dboyce@ufcw1776.org
215-870-2299

DH, MMRegulations

From: Daniel Sabo <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 10:54 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Sabo

Mr. Daniel Sabo
14129 Wayne Dr
Irwin, PA 15642
sabod@msn.com
4126387533

DH, MMRegulations

From: Derek Mrvan <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 9:18 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Derek Mrvan

Mr. Derek Mrvan
234 Wayne St
Lower Burrell, PA 15068
djmrvan@comcast.net

DH, MMRegulations

From: Diane Johnstone <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:49 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Diane Johnstone

Ms. Diane Johnstone
11702 telfair rd
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19154
djohnstone@ufcw1776.org

DH, MMRegulations

From: Ed Cooper <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:32 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Ed Cooper

Mr. Ed Cooper
121 Everglade Dr
Pittsburgh, PA 15235
ercoop54@yahoo.com
412-266-1835

DH, MMRegulations

From: Henry Zabala <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2021 9:04 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Henry Zabala

Mr. Henry Zabala
922 n. 6th street
Reading , PA 19604
Henryjuly94@gmail.com
6107909753

DH, MMRegulations

From: Jean Gerard <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:23 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Jean Edouard Gerard

Mr. Jean Gerard
211 Academy st
Wilkes Barre , PA 18702
Eddy35@yahoo.com
901.484.2353

DH, MMRegulations

From: Jenn France <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 8:45 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Jenn France

Ms. Jenn France
347 Johns Avenue
McDonald, PA 15057
jfrance@ufcw1776.org
(724) 344-5054

DH, MMRegulations

From: Jillian Johnstone <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:08 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Jillian Johnstone

Miss Jillian Johnstone
11702 Telfair Rd
Philadelphia, PA 19154
jjohnstone@ufcw1776.org
2156373769

DH, MMRegulations

From: Joann Scherer <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 7:17 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Joann Scherer

Ms. Joann Scherer
2715 Pyramid Ave
Pgh, PA 15227
lilauntjojo@yahoo.com
4122157418

DH, MMRegulations

From: John Mckenna <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 5:51 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
John McKenna

Mr. John Mckenna
9 Wilson St.
Jessup, PA 18434
jjmckenna77@gmail.com
5708401596

DH, MMRegulations

From: judith priore <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 5:38 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
JUDITH G PRIORE

Ms. judith priore
1487 blossom hill road
pittsburgh, PA 15234
j.priore@verizon.net
4128860218

DH, MMRegulations

From: Julia Settino <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:50 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Julia Settino

Mrs. Julia Settino
1215 Grouse Dr
Pittsburgh, PA 15243
jsettino@uicw1776.org
724-514-3228

DH, MMRegulations

From: Kalea Lewis <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 6:56 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Kalea Lewis

Ms. Kalea Lewis
6517 Allman street
Philadelphia, PA 19142
lealewis56@gmail.com
2674230844

DH, MMRegulations

From: Kevin Drew <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:12 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Kevin M. Drew

Mr. Kevin Drew
82 Ember Ln
Horsham, PA 19044
kdrew504@verizon.net

DH, MMRegulations

From: Kevin Nau <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:02 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Kevin Nau

Mr. Kevin Nau
102 Tudor dr
St Clairsville , OH 43950
Knau@ufcw1776.org
412-736-4296

DH, MMRegulations

From: Leslie Bond <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 3:38 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Leslie Bond

Mrs. Leslie Bond
102 Mae Lane
Uniontown, PA 15401
bondgirlles@gmail.com
4124437870

DH, MMRegulations

From: Liana Reed <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 2:52 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Liana Reed

Ms. Liana Reed
1035 Rosalie st
Philadelphia, PA 19149
lreed@ufcw1776.org
2155354566

DH, MMRegulations

From: Lisa Snyder <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2021 8:44 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Lisa Snyder

Mrs. Lisa Snyder
1034 Ryan Ave
New Castle, PA 16101
rsls80@aol.com
2404311398

DH, MMRegulations

From: Marc J. Mancini <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 10:09 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Marc J. Mancini

Mr. Marc J. Mancini
1529 Berryman Ave
South Park , PA 15129
wolfgang2286@yahoo.com
4122165839

DH, MMRegulations

From: Marcy Kelly <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:04 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Marcy Kelly

Ms. Marcy Kelly
3031 A Walton Rd
Plymouth Meeting, PA 19462
mkelly@ufcw1776.org
6109401847

DH, MMRegulations

From: Marissa Giorgio <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 1:57 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Marissa Giorgio

Miss Marissa Giorgio
2246 Matts Way
Warrington, PA 18976
marissagiorgio@ufcw1776.org
12152720471

DH, MMRegulations

From: Michele Michael <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:12 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Michele Michael

Mrs. Michele Michael
2007 Lantern Lane
Oreland, PA 19075
flyersfamily@comcast.net
215-948-3231

DH, MMRegulations

From: Mike Baker <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:38 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Mike Baker

Mr. Mike Baker
1030 Pine Street
Milton, PA 17847
mbaker@ufcw1776.org
6103149921

DH, MMRegulations

From: Nichole Remmert <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 6:21 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Nichole Remmert

Ms. Nichole Remmert
113 Meadowbrook Dr
Moon Township, PA 15108
nicholeaileen@gmail.com
4437423093

DH, MMRegulations

From: paul ludwig <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Wednesday, March 24, 2021 3:25 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely, p. ludwig
paul ludwig

Mr. paul ludwig
110 ardsley rd
upper darby, PA 19082
sweeper22@rcn.com
610-960-8518

DH, MMRegulations

From: Peter Kitt <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 6:34 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely, Peter Kitt
Peter Kitt

Mr. Peter Kitt
858 Wheatland Circle
Bridgeville, PA 15017
Peter.kitt@yahoo.com
(412) 389-1511

DH, MMRegulations

From: Ramona Williams <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2021 8:49 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.*

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Ramona Williams

Ms. Ramona Williams
6026 NASSAU RD
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19151-3508
chocolatedelight325@gmail.com
2676000015

DH, MMRegulations

From: Robert Bruce <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2021 10:39 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Robert Bruce

Mr. Robert Bruce
222 OWL CREEK ROAD
TAMAQUA, PA 18252
bbruce09@ptd.net
5704498569

DH, MMRegulations

From: Ryan Koslof <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 4:42 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Ryan Koslof

Mr. Ryan Koslof
1618 filmore street
Aliquippa, PA 15001
Rawule@gmail.com

DH, MMRegulations

From: Stacia Young <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 8:15 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Stacia Young

Ms. Stacia Young
1038 Peebles Lane
Mckeesport, PA 15132
syong@uicw1776.org
4127389468

DH, MMRegulations

From: Tom Mclean <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Sunday, March 21, 2021 10:26 AM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Tommy mclean

Mr. Tom Mclean
31 front st
Pittston, PA 18640
Mclean617@yahoo.com

DH, MMRegulations

From: Toni Sarti <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Saturday, March 20, 2021 6:40 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Toni Sarti

Ms. Toni Sarti
2049 STATE ROUTE 906
Rostraver Twp, PA 15012-4576
tyber2049@comcast.net
7249294019

DH, MMRegulations

From: Tyler Umstead <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Tuesday, March 23, 2021 10:44 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is s critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under “community impact” section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Tyler Umstead

Mr. Tyler Umstead
2821 Queen Ave
Easton, PA 18045
96umsteadt@gmail.com
6104281341

DH, MMRegulations

From: Wilkinson Bellille <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Friday, March 19, 2021 6:46 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
Wilkinson Bellille

Mr. Wilkinson Bellille
548, Hansen Ave Apt.1
Lyndora, PA 16045
willsoreal91@gmail.com
724-262-6120

DH, MMRegulations

From: William Fahringer <info@ufcw1776.org>
Sent: Monday, March 22, 2021 12:49 PM
To: DH, MMRegulations; brodas@ufcw1776.org
Subject: [External] Public Comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219

ATTENTION: This email message is from an external sender. Do not open links or attachments from unknown sources. To report suspicious email, forward the message as an attachment to CWOPA_SPAM@pa.gov.

Members of the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health:

I am submitting public comment in response to proposed Regulation #10-219: Medical Marijuana. The Medical Marijuana Program provides critical relief for thousands of patients across the Commonwealth, sustainable jobs for growers, processors and distributors and an opportunity to pave the way for a new industry in Pennsylvania. I believe it is imperative that employers in this industry are accountable and held to a standard consistent with other industries serving patients in the Commonwealth. It is critical that Pennsylvania get the process right in order to protect the workforce and the future of this industry. As such, my comments are regarding section § 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions.

As you are aware, applicants seeking a medical marijuana license submit a comprehensive application detailing their projected plans, financials, diversity plans, impact on the community, and more. Applicants have been able to receive additional points on their application by signing a neutrality and card check agreement with a labor organization, agreeing to stay neutral in the attempt to organize the workforce, bringing better wages, benefits and protection to employees in this new industry. With a limited number of licenses available and therefore limited opportunities for employment, it is critical that these employers are being held to such standards when receiving their license.

As such, I am requesting a change to subsection 1141.47 (General penalties and sanctions). I am requesting that the Independent Regulation Review Commission and Department of Health include the following language to ensure that employers comply with the neutrality and card check agreements they submit with their application, giving the employees the opportunity to learn about all of their options and penalize the employer should they be found in violation:

§ 1141.47. General penalties and sanctions. (a)(vi) The medical marijuana organization fails to comply with neutrality and card check agreements and/or other labor peace agreements submitted with the initial application.

This change will permit the Department of Health to enforce the submission of labor peace agreements which are included under "community impact" section of the application and awarded up to 5 additional points for signing. Specifically, this change will permit the Department

to suspend or revoke a license, issue a civil penalty of up to $10,000 for the violation and an additional penalty of up to $1,000 a day for each day the violation is not cured or issue a written warning against the license, depending on the gravity of the situation. These are the same penalties provided for all provisions under this section.

Under the current structure, medical marijuana licensees that do not comply with a labor peace agreement are often taken through the lengthy arbitration process. However, even in instances where unions have won in arbitration, little opportunity to organize is present because of various reasons including turnover and termination of those agreeing to unionize, expiration of a labor peace agreements and more. Employers lean into the lack of enforcement to extend the process with the hopes of reaching the end of the contract before having to recognize a union. These employers face no penalty for their failure to comply with the information submitted during the application process. Therefore, the suggested change would ensure that employers that do not comply with labor peace agreements face a penalty, and the precedent is set that all information submitted with an application must be complied with.

This additional language will permit the Department of Health to ensure that employers are not falsifying their plans to stay neutral on applications in order to receive additional points and eliminate bad actors in this industry. This simple and necessary change will help protect the workforce of an industry that we are still learning how to best operate. Thank you for taking my comments into consideration.

Sincerely,
William Fahringer

Mr. William Fahringer
905 Ayrdale Place
Phila, PA 19128
WFAHRINGER@YAHOO.COM
2678728355