To the members of the PCGB Board:

It seems to me that the change PGCB is proposing to its policy for removing people from the self-exclusion list so that self-excluded individuals will now be removed from the list automatically at the end of their 1 year or 5 year self-exclusion period without having to make any request, is primarily designed to help the casino industry and not the people the Pennsylvania government is supposed to help.

It reeks of more corporate take-over of the people's government, no doubt fueled by handsome gifts from casino corporate lobbyists so common today. We have the best government money can buy, and possibly the best PGCB money can buy too, if they do make this change requested by monied casino interest.
